YANKS PUSH WITHIN 13 MILES OF ROME

Allies To Fight If Germans Defend Rome

DESTRUCTION OF HUNS DECLARED AS CHIEF AIM

Military Measures Will Be Taken To Eject Nazis From Eternal City

DECISION UP TO HITLER

All Efforts Will Aim At Safeguarding Civilians, Cultural Works

NAPLES, June 3—The German army will be ejected from Rome by "military measures," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today, if the Nazi high command chooses to defend the city.

With Fifth Army spearheads already within 13 miles of Rome, the supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre reaffirmed that every effort would be made by the Allies to safeguard both the civilian population and cultural works of the Eternal City.

In a formal declaration, General Wilson said:

"The Allied military authorities are confronted by a ruthless enemy in Italy, and are interested solely in the destruction and elimination of the German forces in that country.

"They have taken, and will continue to take, every possible precaution during the course of the campaign to spare the innocent civilians and cultural and religious monuments of permanent value to civilization."

He added that the Allied leaders are particularly "deeply conscious of the unique position occupied by Rome as one of the chief historic and cultural centers of the world." However, he continued:

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take military measures to eject them."

Moreover, the general added, the Allies are well aware that Rome, as the seat of his holiness the Pope contains the neutral state of Vatican City. Only a German stand there will force the Allies to take military action against the city.

"The Allies have only taken, and will only take military action against Rome, in so far as the Germans use the city, its highways, and its roads for their military purposes," the statement continued.

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take appropriate military measures to eject them. It is therefore the sincere hope of his majesty's government and the United States government that the enemy will not make this ill-considered choice."

Courts May Turn Deaf Ear To Ward

Ruling That WLB Orders Are Final Indicates Avery Defeat

WASHINGTON, June 3—The War Labor Board, facing the possibility of a new showdown with Montgomery Ward and Company, found its position appreciably strengthened today by a United States court of appeals ruling that its orders are not subject to court review.

In a half dozen cases involving WLB orders to Ward units scattered throughout the country, Sewell Avery, board chairman of the mail order house, has filed suits challenging the board's jurisdiction and contesting the legality of its directives.

The opinion of Justice Henry W. Edgerton, of the District of Columbia court of appeals, may fore-shadow, however, the ultimate dismissal of all of Avery's court cases. One, involving U. S. Gypsum, which Avery also heads, previously was dismissed in district court and is on appeal.

Moreover, the ruling strengthened the position of the WLB as it deliberates the question of whether to order an extension of the expired contract between the CIO department workers union and Ward's Chicago branch, which recently was seized and then released by the government over just such an issue.

In a hearing before the board last Wednesday, William Powell, an attorney for Ward's, reiterated the company's oft-expressed objection to such an order, contending that it is an order, not a contract.

AIRMEN URGE DECORATION FOR BRITISH WOMAN

LONDON, June 3—American officers of a United States Army Air Force station suggested today that Betty Everitt, gallant English woman who lost her life attempting to rescue members of the American crew of a fighter bomber which crashed and burst into flames near her home, be given the highest possible posthumous decoration by the Army.

And Col. Penden, Henderson, N. C., commander of the station suggested America give Betty Everitt's four-year-old son, Tony, a scholarship "in memorial to her courage in trying to rescue my boys from a burning plane."

A total of $2,900 has already been donated to the fund. Col. Penden added that her sacrifice was as great as any hero who gives his life in combat. "She knew fire would explode the bombs and ammunition at any moment, but she went right ahead trying to get those wounded Americans out before it was too late."

Mrs. Everitt helped two gunners struggle clear of the burning mass of twisted metal, but an explosion put an abrupt end to her efforts. Tony's father was killed in the war some months ago. Unaware of his mother's death the boy spends the day playing ball with members of the ground crew and admiring the fliers.

Col. Penden announced his group had not yet decided how to give the $2,900 which they donated, but they want to set up some kind of trust to make sure "he will be taken care of long after we have gone home."

HUN UNIFORMS SCARCE NOW IN ROME STREETS

NEW YORK, June 3—"German uniforms have become increasingly scarce" in Rome, the Swiss newspaper Journal De Geneve reported today, adding that trolley and bus service in the Italian capital has been suspended.

The dispatch, emanating from Rome, added that "hardly any military vehicles are seen except ambulances carrying wounded soldiers from the front." FCC heard the wireless transmission of the story.

De Gaulle Ready To Go To London Parley, But Lacks Transportation

WASHINGTON, June 3—Obstacles appeared today in the path of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the French National Committee of Liberation, which might delay his going to London in response to the invitation of Prime Minister Churchill.

A spokesman for the French delegation in Washington said the invitation had been accepted and the general is ready to leave Algiers at any moment. But as yet no transportation has been provided.

In diplomatic circles it was intimated that De Gaulle might not leave for some time, in view of the fact that no clear understanding has been reached on the authority Britain and the United States are willing to extend to the French committee after the invasion.

De Gaulle was reported insisting on an agreement with his committee—which he calls a provisional government—along the same lines as the agreements already made with the Dutch, Belgian, and Norwegian governments for civil control of their respective countries.

These agreements were announced May 16. But as yet no such agreement has been reached regarding France.

French officials in Washington said the committee has completed its own post-invasion plans, but desires to know whether they are in line with Allied plans. In short, (Continued on Page Two)

WALLACE ASKS COOPERATION IN POST-WAR PLANS

NEW YORK, June 3—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace called for complete postwar cooperation between Russia, the United States, and their Allies for postwar peace and development in a speech reported by the OWI today.

Wallace spoke Thursday in the Irkutsk provincial theatre, addressing his audience in Russian. During the speech he compared Siberia with the far west of early America, and added that Siberia, the northwestern sections of the United States and Canada and all of Alaska would play an important part in post-war reconstruction.

Wallace said: "Now, when the early dawn of the post-war world is beginning slowly to rise on the horizon, it becomes quite clear that only complete collaboration of our two great countries and of our Allies can give the world conditions of peace and regular development."

"In the great work of post-war reconstruction it will be essential that in the interests of the whole world, the important role of the northwestern part of the United States, Canada, Alaska and Soviet Siberia should be recognized. These enormous, sparsely populated territories were conquered in our time by airplanes. Now they need to be developed in both their agricultural economy and their industry."

RUSSIAN BASES BEING USED BY YANK AIR FORCE

Shuttle Bombing Brings All Hun Industry Under Allied Bombsights

FIRST RAID SUCCESSFUL

Operation Ushers In New Momentous Chapter To History Of War

MOSCOW, June 3—American heavy bombers and long-range fighter planes employed Russian airbases today in shuttle-bombing which brought under Allied bombsights all German industry and was revealed as the first military achievement of the historic Moscow and Teheran conferences.

In the first operation ushering in a momentous new chapter in the history of air war, sleek U. S. Fortresses and death-dealing Mustang fighters swooped down on the air-dromes somewhere in Russia after blasting Axis targets in Eastern Europe.

Official announcement of the first shuttle-bombing attack between Allied and Russian territory was revealed late last night at Moscow and constituted the first disclosure that American-operated airbases had been established in the Soviet Union.

"On the morning of June 2, large forces of American bombers, under fighter escort, dealt blows at military objectives in Romania," the official bulletin declared.

One Bomber Lost

"Part of the bombers that participated in the raid landed at bases in Soviet territory. One bomber and one fighter failed to land."

There was no indication in the initial announcement where the raiders had taken off, nor their particular objectives.

(However, about 750 American bombers and an equal number of fighters were known to have flown from bases in Italy to plaster seven railroad yards in the Balkans yesterday. The targets of these Mediterranean air force raiders included Cluj, 200 miles northwest of the Romanian capital.)

HOG SALES IN COUNTY SOAR TO NEW PEAK

More hogs were sold in Pickaway county this week than probably ever before in history. Harry Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association said that his organization disposed of 2,000 head of which two-thirds were top hogs selling up to $13.80. The others were lights, stags, sows and medium quality.

Mr. Briggs said that sales have been so heavy that growers are being asked to call the stockyards before delivering top hogs as in some instances the hogs can not be moved immediately.

Mr. Briggs called attention to the fact that so long as the present floor price remains in effect that hogs in the 240 to 270 weights may sell as high as $14.05 while the peak for top hogs in the 180 to 240 class is set at $14.80.

SEEING EYE WINS FIVE YEAR TILT FOR BIG LEGACY

NEW YORK, June 3—The Seeing Eye, Inc., of Morristown, N. J., which provides dog guides for blind persons, received a legacy of $123,205 today from the estate of Mrs. Isabel D. McHie, ending five years of litigation over her will.

The late Alexander Woolcott was a co-trustee of the estate, the appointment going to him after Mrs. McHie had heard the author and humorist describe the Seeing Eye in a radio broadcast in 1934. Her will, in which she left the fortune to the Seeing Eye, was unsuccessfully contested.

American Lieutenant Takes Anchor City Of Hun Line By Mistake

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, VALMONTONE SECTOR, June 3—Valmontone, anchor town of the Nazi last ditch line before Rome, is in American hands today, "by mistake."

After bloody tank and infantry battles raged for days before the town, German defenders evacuated Valmontone when American forces seized commanding positions east of the Via Cassilina.

Friday, Lieut. William Alexander, of Tarboro, N. C., of the combat engineers, captured Valmontone "by mistake."

Lieut. Alexander said: "Honestly, I'd been given to understand that our troops were in the town. I was assigned to make a reconnaissance of Highway Six as it goes through the town and also to look for mines."

"You can imagine my surprise when Italian civilians came running out shouting that the 'Tedeschi' were gone and I was the first 'Americano' to enter."

The soldiers listening to Alexander at a front line battalion command post were not sure whether they could imagine his surprise or not, recalling that two combat engineers, Capt. Ben Souza of Honolulu and Lieut. Francis Bickley of Philadelphia made the junction between Anzio beachhead forces and the main army last week.

German retreat from Valmontone was assured when a platoon under Lieut. Roger Phillips, of Manhattan, Kan., dug in across Via Cassilina to the east.

Other troops commanded by Capt. Robert Hahn, of Hagerstown, Md., crossed the highway and took up commanding positions.

Companies led by Captains Charles Morgan, Talladega, Ala., Otto Gunst, Metuchen, N. J., and Raymond Steere, Junction City, Kan., took up strong positions south of the highway to assure that no retreating Nazis could use the route.

Some Nazis, apparently including sections of the Hermann Goering division escaped northwest on the highway, but fast-working infantry got heavy weapons west of the town in time to intercept three truckloads of the enemy, killing many and capturing others.

Lieut. James Dorsey, of Irwin, Pa., led a battle patrol which discovered a German observation post, captured two of the four soldiers there and wounded a third, and seized the radio which had been used to direct the enemy's artillery fire.

To the northwest of Valmontone tanks of the battalion commanded by Lieut. Col. Bogardus Cairns, of Decatur, Ga., also smashed forward to the highway, expanding American control of the Via Cassilina.

Valmontone today is just another smashed-up Italian city. The handful of civilians who remained cooped-up in a partially-wrecked church throughout the siege are grateful to the Americans for deliverance.

Still they got an explosive reminder that Valmontone is not yet out of the war. The Germans shelled the town and highway area with nebelwerfers, "screaming meemies," and 88 mm. guns.

SLIP OF TONGUE INDICATES F. D. R. PLANS TO STAY

WASHINGTON, June 3—Members of congress were discussing today the possibility that President Roosevelt, by a slip of the tongue, may have indicated he is a candidate for a fourth term.

The President was quoted as asking one of his opponents in the 1936 election, "are you going to run against me this time?"

The question was addressed to Rep. William Lemke (R) N. D., as Mr. Roosevelt greeted a congressional delegation attending a White House reception.

When Lemke replied in the negative, the President, in what members of the congressional party described as a "quick attempt at recovery," said: "Maybe neither one of us had better run this time."

The remark evoked general laughter and the question of the fourth term was not pursued. At the time he opposed Mr. Roosevelt, Lemke was a candidate of the Union Party.

ENEMY DEFENSE IN DEPTH FAILS TO HALT DRIVE

COUNTER-ATTACK FAILS

Fighting Flares Following Long Period Of Quiet On Russian Front

By International News Service

American forces battered their way through enemy "defense in depth" in their two-pronged drive on Rome today, occupying Monte Castellaccio and enlarging their penetration north of Velletri.

The Yanks, who had pushed spearheads to within 13 miles of Rome after their brilliant feat of capturing Velletri and Valmontone, were encountering Nazi defenses of "considerable depth."

"Although Velletri and Valmontone now have been taken by the Fifth Army after heavy fighting," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's headquarters announced, "the enemy's defensive positions in this sector have not yet been broken."

To the north, though, the announcement added the "penetration has been enlarged." The Yanks occupied Monte Castellaccio.

British Advance

British Eighth Army units further south pressed hard on the heels of some eight Nazi divisions trapped by the cutting of the Via Cassilina, last good escape route toward Rome. The British forces rolled forward to take Veroli and send forward units on to Alatri.

British and Canadian units pushing northwest are driving the trapped Nazi units toward American-held Valmontone astride the Via Cassilina.

In retreat the Nazis must use secondary roads which will not accommodate their heavy equipment.

The aerial blasting of occupied Europe took a great stride forward as the offensive rolled on in Italy. Heavy bombers based in the East attacked Balkan objectives and proceeded to land at U. S. Air Bases set up in Russia.

Bombers Active

Strong formations of Britain-based bombers and fighters roared over the cloud-covered channel today after RAF night bombers had smashed the Trappes railway yard in the Paris area, and hit military targets in Northern France.

The German industrial city of Leverkusen, north of Cologne, also was hit, and enemy-held waters were mined.

At least seven Nazi interceptor planes were shot down, and 17 British bombers failed to return from the raids.

On the Russian land front, fighting flared after a long period of inactivity. A Russian communique reported that German forces attacking north of the Romanian rail junction of Iasi had driven a small wedge into Soviet lines at the cost of tremendous losses. A later German announcement said that Russian troops had (Continued on Page Two)

N A Z I IDEOLOGY SEEN AS THREAT FOLLOWING WAR

NEW YORK, June 3—U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas pointed to Nazi ideology today as the greatest menace to the world after the United Nations have achieved victory.

Speaking at dedicatory exercises at the New Free World house, Justice Douglas said that after the armies have laid down their arms, the "millennium will not have arrived," and warned that the United States must first solve its own problems before it can assume world leadership.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, speaking on the same program, defended the Atlantic charter as a document which must be read, understood and adhered to in the light of the period in which it was written. "It means exactly what it says," he declared in criticizing recent attempts to interpret it.

FIGHT PROMPTS DETROIT STRIKE

Thousands Quit War Plant Following Discharge Of Belligerents

DETROIT, June 3—Several thousand war workers at Continental Motors Corp., stopped work today after three union stewards were dismissed following a fist fight which involved a foreman, a superintendent, the stewards and another employee.

Detroit's newest work stoppage came as a 21-day strike of 450 workers at the Stroh Brewing Company ended and walkouts in the Ford Highland Park and Lincoln plants affected production of tank engines and B-24 Liberator bombers.

The trouble started at Continental in the automatic screw machine department. The foreman, it was reported, had an argument with a worker and assertedly struck him. The stewards and superintendent became involved in the altercation and the stewards were fired.

Work stopped at 5:30 a. m. The day shift reported as usual, but once inside the plant the employees refused to work. The employees are members of UAW-CIO local 280.

40 PERCENT OF VETS SHUN JOBS IN HOME TOWNS

NEW YORK, June 3—Forty percent of the veterans being discharged from the army in the eastern section of the country not only do not want their old jobs back, but do not even want to return to their old communities, a War department survey disclosed today.

Fletcher Waller, assistant director of civilian personnel and training, said that a similar survey conducted on the west coast showed an even higher percentage of men who did not want to go back to their previous occupations.

Bases Big Help

With bases on Soviet territory—where they can land to be refueled and reloaded with bombs and ammunition—the American no longer will have to negotiate round-trip flights from their distant bases in Italy, Britain and North Africa to their targets and return.

Shortly after the first bulletin told of the arrival of the American formations, the eastern command of the U. S. Strategic Air Forces issued its initial communication from its new headquarters in Russia. The American announcement said the Romanian targets had been "selected by our Russian ally" and added that only "slight" enemy air defenses on the route of the Allied strategic force and providing area fighter support.

A special announcement broadcast over the Moscow radio by the Soviet government declared that the westward advance of the Red Army had brought its area of operations within the range of the air forces of the United States and Great Britain.

"In order to ensure that the efforts of the combined air forces shall be concentrated on the most important objectives for the United Nations, direct contact between the respective staffs has been established," the statement added.

Brief but happy celebrations marked the arrival of the American airmen who were enthusiastically greeted by U. S. and Soviet soldiers who had worked day and night for the last few months preparing the bases. After the initial rejoicing, the ground crews sprang to work, servicing the Fortresses and Mustangs for another call on the Axis enroute back to their bases in Italy, Africa or Britain.

The operation was the first time that long-range fighters had participated in any shuttle air attack. Previously, such missions between Britain and Southern Italy or North Africa were made only by heavy bombers.

Indeed, as he watched some of the bombers land, Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, head of the American military mission to the U. S. S. R., declared:

"History was made today... this shuttle bombing makes vulnerable all of Germany's industrial facilities."

GERMAN ACE DIES

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Nazi DNB agency revealed today that Maj. Friedrich Karl Mueller, German fighter squadron commander with an alleged 140 air victories to his credit, has died "a hero's death." Though the enemy broadcast heard by the FCC did not reveal how Mueller died, it insisted the Allies "did not vanquish him."

A flint axe-head believed to be 200,000 years old was found in a gravel pit near Doncaster, England.

Courts May Turn Deaf Ear To Ward

ing it was beyond WLB's jurisdiction and violated both the Wagner act and the War Labor Disputes Act.

The court of appeals' ruling said: "It is clear and indisputable that no statute authorizes review of the War Labor Board's orders. As we point out below, the legislative history of the War Labor Disputes Act implies a positive intention that these orders should not be reviewed."

The appellates in the case, the employers' group of motor freight carriers, contended in presenting their case that non-compliance with WLB orders might result in certification of the case to the White House and seizure of their facilities by the President.

"If it be true, as appellates suggest, that the President may ultimately take possession of their plants and facilities, that possibility is irrelevant, not only because it is speculative but also because it is independent of the board's order," the court stated.

"Neither the broad constitutional power nor the broad statutory power of the President to take and use property in furtherance of the war effort depend on any action of the WLB."

The decision, first to be rendered by any appellate court holding that WLB orders are not subject to review, went on to say the demand that the court enjoin the board's order amounted to a demand that "we prevent the board from giving the President advice."

FIFTEEN COUNTY YOUTHS REACH MILITARY AGE

Fifteen Pickaway county youths became 18 years of age during May and registered with the local draft board. These boys will probably be included in the next contingent of men sent to Fort Hayes for pre-physical examinations during June. The local board has not received notice of the number that will be called this month, but it is expected that the total will be much smaller than the May contingent.

Those who registered during May were Bernard E. Lockard, Circleville; Ralph E. Dunkle, Rt. 2, Ashville; Carl W. Speakman, Rt. 1, New Holland; Richard W. North, Rt. 1, Ashville; Walter W. Koch, Ashville; Harry E. Robison, Circleville; John R. Eppard, Rt. 3, Circleville; Donald E. Quince, Circleville; William J. Lindsey, Rt. 2, Ashville; Chester C. Peters, Rt. 2, Ashville; Thomas E. Invasion Jitters Grip Congress; Prospect For Recess Now Uncertain

WASHINGTON, June 3.—"Invasion jitters" gripped congress today with the result that prospects for a recess became as uncertain as the date of the western offensive itself.

A canvass by Democratic and Republican leaders revealed reluctance on the part of many members of congress to a recess from June 20 to September 1 because of the possibility that the invasion may come during this period.

The feeling, it was admitted, is based solely on the possible reaction of voters in an election year to congress taking a vacation while American soldiers are storming the Hitlerian European fortress.

"We couldn't do anything and they'll probably forget we are in session when the invasion comes, but if we are away while the boys are fighting, a lot of people won't like it," explained one senator.

Strong opposition to a long recess also was voiced by some senators who are demanding that important postwar legislation be passed.

This includes the contract termination and plant clearance bill, passed by the senate and pending in the house; a bill for disposal of surplus property, additional unemployment insurance and an office of demobilization to control cut-backs.

Democratic leaders generally are willing to accept a few weeks' recess, although Democratic Senate leader Barkley said he is unconcerned about it.

The Republican senate steering committee planned another session today on the question, after conferences with house Republican leaders.

Three plans are under consideration. Under one a recess would be taken from June 20 to September 1; a second plan called for a recess of 10 days over the Republican national convention, a similar recess over the Democratic convention, and three-day recesses between them.

The plan reported to be most favored is for a recess from about June 20 until July 25. This would span both conventions.

It appeared doubtful, however, that congress could dispose of important "must" legislation before June 20. This includes the price control extension act and important appropriation bills.

the committee desires an agreement, without which, it was said, the population of France would be confused, and clashes among different elements might arise.

This is not a question of extending further recognition to the committee, but merely of coordinating plans for civilian control.

But the British and American governments decline to go beyond the statements of Secretary of State Hull and Prime Minister Churchill, which were almost identical in language.

"The committee will exercise leadership in the latter of law and order in the liberated area of France, under supervision of the Allied commander-in-chief."

When Churchill added to this statement that he had invited De Gaulle to London, there were cheers in the house of commons. But it remains to be seen when the French general will actually be provided with an airplane for making the trip.

A further affront to the general was felt in French circles by the fact that the United States has no high-ranking diplomatic representative accredited to the committee in Algiers.

Edwin C. Wilson, who had the personal rank of ambassador, was withdrawn from that post a month ago, "because of the serious illness of his wife." The State department has made no move to appoint a successor.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Kinds of Cabbages for Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

EVERYONE likes variety, even in cabbages. Therefore, if the Victory gardener will plant some of the red cabbages as well as the white ones, color can be added to the table. And for a dark green cabbage grow the Savoy types. The Savoy cabbage, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is characterized by crinkly foliage. The Savoy types are attractive in appearance, more tender in quality, and sweeter to the taste than any other cabbages.

Cabbages need to be cultivated with care and an understanding of their root growth. Most of the roots of a cabbage grow within the upper two inches of the soil. The roots also grow almost horizontally. Therefore, only very shallow cultivation should be practiced when the plants have attained considerable size.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, only enough cultivation should be done around cabbages to keep the weeds down (and this preferable with a scuffle hoe) and to maintain a dust mulch.

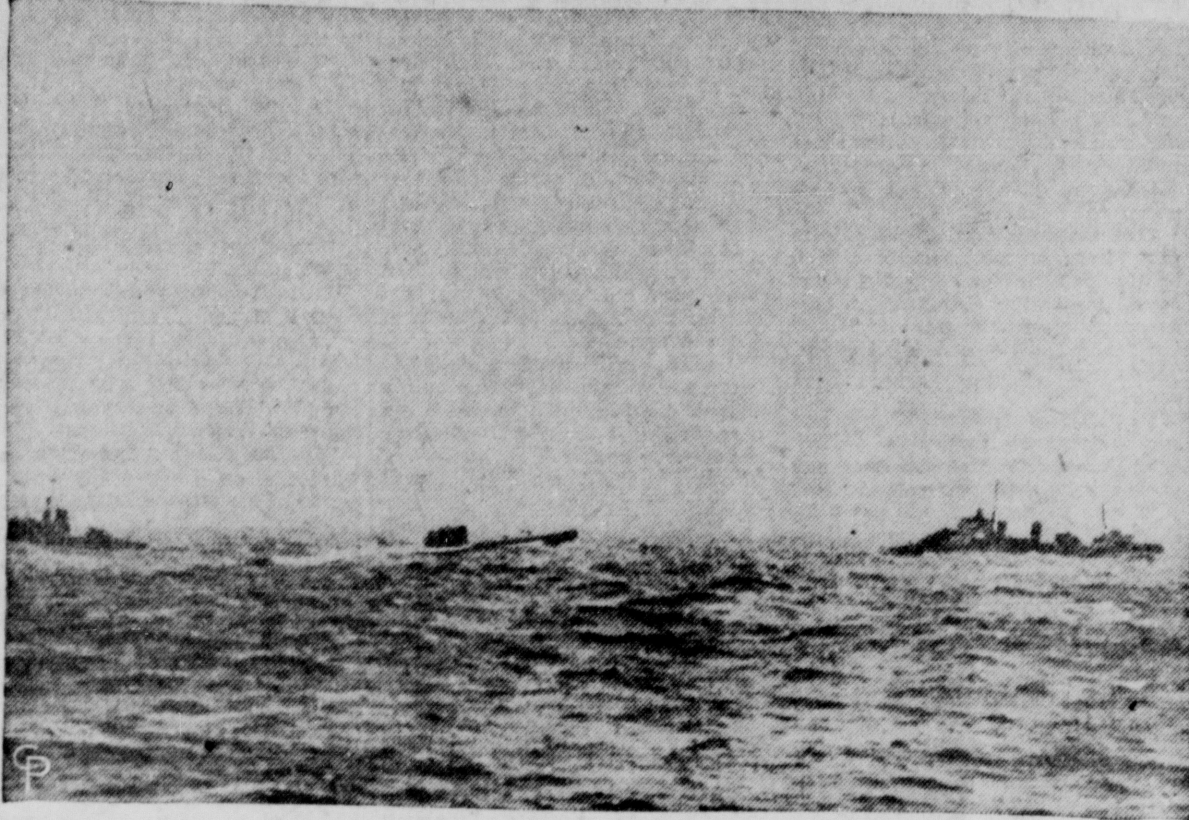

Hand hoeing or hand weeding is usually necessary to keep the weeds down between the plants in the row. This is especially important in the spring when weed growth is most rampant.

ONLY ONE WAY TO GO FOR THIS NAZI U-BOAT

ON THE HEELS OF ALLIED INVADERS

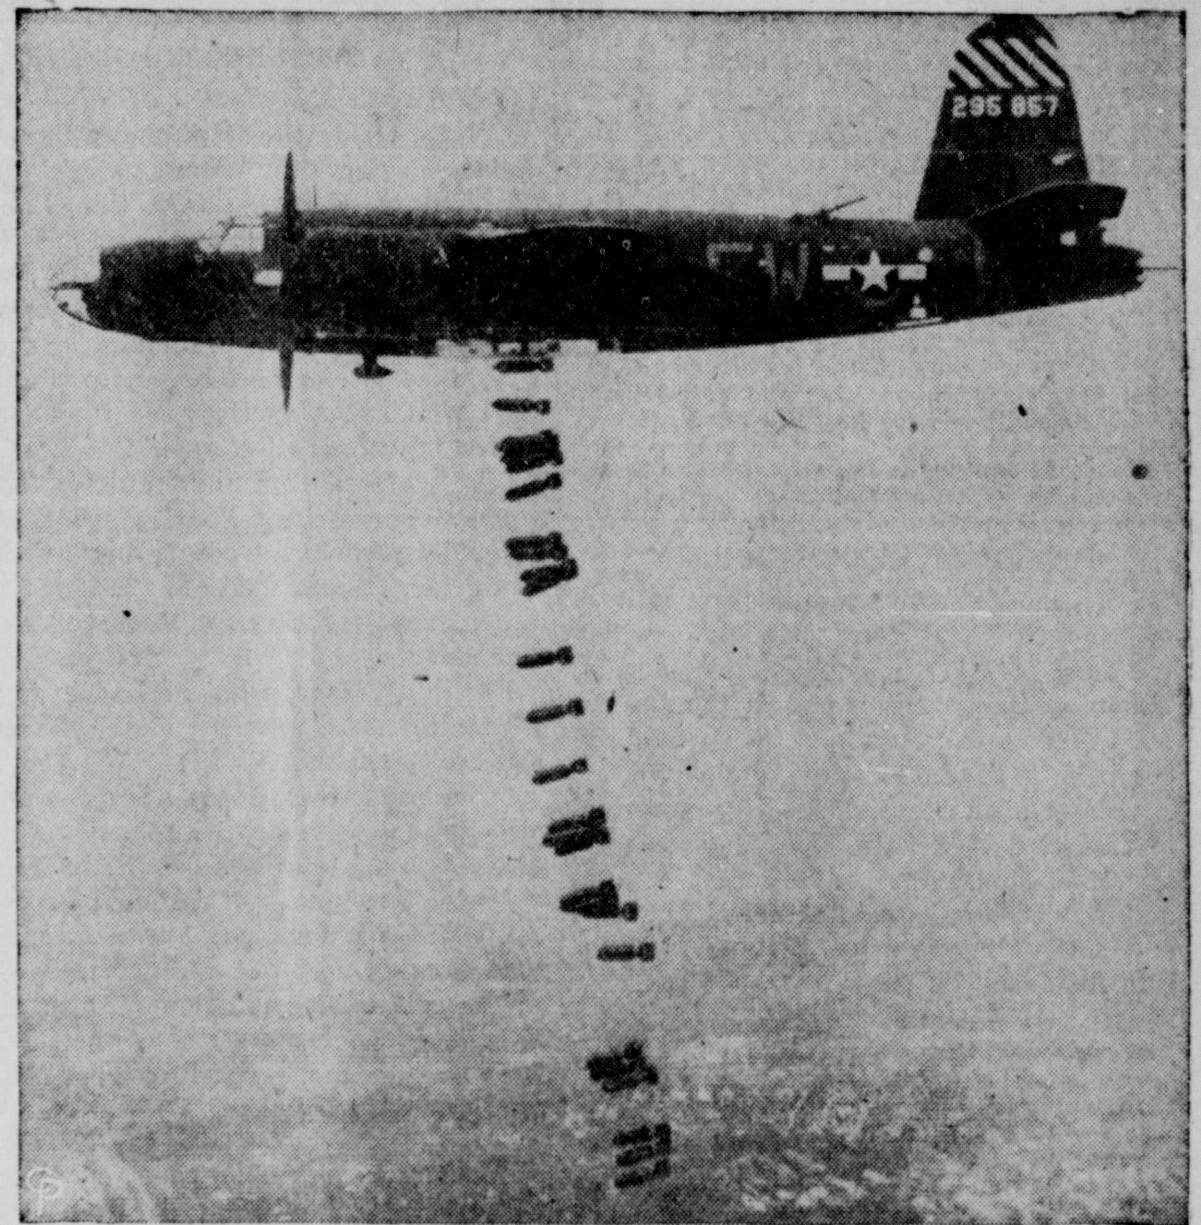

26 REASONS WHY NAZIS SHOULD FEAR A B-26

CORNERED LIKE the proverbial rat in a trap, a German submarine is shown, center, forced to the surface in the mid-Atlantic, wallowing helplessly before sinking. The attacking ships are the Canadian destroyer Chilliwack, left, and the destroyer Icarus, at right. When the sub sank, each of the naval craft picked up survivors. A whaler also rescued 13 of the submarine crew and turned them over to the royal frigate St. Catharines. In the photo below, Canadian seamen scramble up the nets of the St. Catharines with one of the rescued sub crewmen. The Allies are winning the "Battle of the Atlantic" in such actions as this with many Nazi U-boats being destroyed. Allied convoys have had amazing success in getting by the constantly roving Nazi submarines. (International)

NATIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

SOME gentle-souled people seem to have an idea about war criminals which practical men and women cannot accept. They say they would "punish the sin but not the sinners." Just how they would accomplish it they do not make clear.

Others hesitate to commit themselves to any kind of general penalties for war-makers because they say there are good and unwarlike people in every country, and it is wrong to make them share punishment for evils they were not responsible for.

Neither of those theories or practices gets anywhere in efforts to make a decent world. Punishment for doing evil is a law of nature and also a rule accepted in most religious systems. It seems impossible to escape a practical rule of life, and it is being insisted on more and more in international affairs.

In a perfect world people would not need to be punished. But this world is still imperfect, and requires coercion or penalties to discourage people from mistreating their neighbors. And when people make war as whole nations, they must be punished as whole nations.

THESE BOY-MEN

WITH all due respect for the generals and admirals, and for all men of lower grades and mature age who are engaged in this war, it should be remembered that the toughest fighting is mostly done by boys. And often very young ones. There are reasons for it. A war correspondent, Roeliff Loveland, tells how a "bunch of kids" celebrated Memorial Day.

"They plastered the targets in Germany," he says, "and they came home again—all of them. We saw them come, and we saw them land their heavy bombers. As the propellers of the warships began idling, the grass in the airfield swayed in a happy manner, as if it, too, were glad that they had got back safely."

"Then they began to drop out of the belly of each ship, young lads, so young that your heart went out to them, and you wondered how they had the courage to fly through the hell of flak which meets them on every mission. And yet one was reminded that of all our race, these youngsters are the only ones who have what it takes."

They leave school and home, and are suddenly grown up, and doing for the rest of us the hardest, most dangerous and most essential work in the world.

Only a little way behind them, in the strain and daring of their jobs, are the infantrymen who fight mostly without the glamor and thrill of the air forces.

Invasion delay is said to be making the Germans jittery, but let them cheer up—that won't last forever.

See All-Time Record High In Government Expenditures

Why Jones and Not Nelson Assumed Control of War's

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Budget bureau officials explain that the four billion, 800 million-dollar reduction in the war program for the next fiscal year, announced by President Roosevelt, represents a curtailment in the dollar volume of contracts to be let, but not a decline in actual government expenditures.

Cash outlays in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, they report, still are estimated at 92 billion dollars, as in the January budget.

This will be an all-time high. It will be two billion dollars more than estimated cash expenditures for the fiscal year to end at midnight, June 30.

What the president was saying, officials explain, was that there will be a net decline of four billion, 800 million dollars in the obligations which the government will incur in the next fiscal year to keep the war going. And this is based on the assumption that the war will continue at least until June 30, 1945.

Since there is a time lag between the letting of contracts and the final payment for the delivered article, cash outlays drag some distance behind obligations.

The president disclosed that the war program of the United States government, considered in itself, had been cut back eight billion, 300 millions. But three and one-half billions had been added to the January program for additional lend-lease aid, so that the net curtailment was four billion, 800 millions.

RELIABLE SOURCES ON CAPITOL HILL have come up with the report of an amusing, almost embarrassing, sidelight on the highly explosive armed seizure of the Chicago plant of Montgomery Ward and company.

The report has just now begun to circulate while a special seven-member House committee is investigating the seizure by holding open hearings under chairmanship of Representative Robert Ram-

GOP SENATORS

WASHINGTON—Some of the smart boys inside the Republican Party are quietly urging that their strategy during the coming campaign take the line so powerfully laid down by Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, the other day, when he emphasized various deficiencies in FDR's leadership for permanent peace.

Bridges is one of the Senate Republicans who has a spotless record when it comes to cooperation with the President on the war and on his entire foreign policy. Long before Pearl Harbor, when other Republicans were trying to hamstring the Administration, Bridges was out in front fighting for Roosevelt's main war ideas.

For that reason, what he had to say the other day was much more effective. Bridges' main thesis was:

"The American people are not going to rest content with any issue out of this present struggle which results merely in a re-shuffled game of balance of power politics. We are not going to welcome any new fangled sort of imperialism—will never acclaim any outcome of this present cataclysm which merely sows the seeds of another and more horribly devastating war."

WEAK POINT IN FDR'S ARMOR

Senator Bridges then put his finger on what some Republican strategists believe may be the weak point in Roosevelt's war policies, his apparent lack of conviction that this war is not just another war, to be followed by more wars and more power politics.

"Why is it, Mr. President," asked Bridges, "that you no longer talk about a peace that shall endure? Is this why the New York Times of December 18, 1943, quoted you in your press conference as saying:

"The Allied conferences were motivated by the general thought that they did not want another war in the lifetime of the present generation."

"Does this mean," asked Bridges, "that already you have been forced to compromise the ideal of an enduring peace?"

Bridges also quoted the Saturday Evening Post's recent articles by Forrest Davis on the Teheran conference—articles supposed to have been initiated by FDR in advance and which represent the President as believing "that hereafter only countries with an abundance of manpower and resources plus huge industrial plants can engage in the business of war."

Not only GOP strategists, but some of the President's own friends believe this may be a weak point in the President's armor and, even more important, a weak point as far as the nation is concerned.

From the Republican viewpoint, however, it is only a few men who supported the President before Pearl Harbor, such as Senator Bridges, who can effectively criticize. Most other Republicans can't very well throw stones.

Machine Diagnosis Has Limitations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"IF YOU CAN'T tell the cause of a headache, a heartache or a bellyache, without the use of an encephalogram, an electrocardiograph and a fluoroscope you are slipping," Dr. Martin Fischer, of

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Cincinnati, told some of his fellow medical practitioners. Yes, this is a machine age in medicine as anywhere else. And machines are perfectly accurate. They tell the facts within the limitations of their powers. Only many devotees of machines don't recognize their limitations.

The electrocardiograph machine will tell about a person who has a heartache or whose heart is skipping around, just what part of the heart muscle is acting up. But the machine doesn't get around much. When they get through using it they put a canvas hood over it and leave it in the technician's office and go out and close the door. The machine doesn't know what the fellow with the skipping heart and heartache does Saturday night, or what the letters in his pocket say, or just where his son in the armed forces is stationed.

Limitations of Machines
My old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, and I were sitting side by side listening to a very learned lecture by a very scientific person about a very complicated case. "And what would you do next?" asked the speaker, with dramatic emphasis. "Look for the bottle of opium in the bureau drawer," muttered Dr. Gibbs, who has had a good deal of experience with human nature. The machine can't look in a bureau drawer.

The present situation creates conditions that are naturally reflected in the heart. All the proverbial reminders of that. What we don't remember is that anxiety doesn't result always in just a sad heart. It may spill over into symptoms that resemble real disease. You can call it angina pectoris if you want to and the machine may say angina pectoris, but it is heartache just the same and the cause is not the coronary circulation, but a son or husband or brother out on the firing line at Anzio or New Guinea.

I spoke last week of the palpitation of the heart, the skipped beats and irregularities that are caused by emotion.

There is still another set of symptoms that are mistaken for real organic heart disease and those have to do with shortness of breath and difficult breathing.

Everybody knows that difficult or labored breathing, dyspnea, as the doctors call it, is a sign of heart disease. Fundamentally it is due to the need of the tissue cells for oxygen.

Shortness of Breath
The athlete after a race is breathing in a labored fashion because the effort of the race has caused his muscles to use up an extra amount of oxygen and to accumulate a lot of carbon dioxide. His heart being strong he is soon adjusted to a state of compensation.

The weak heart muscle of the heart patient causes the same condition as exertion does in the case of the athlete, so he is short of breath at rest.

A great many people, however, in these emotional times find themselves with sighing respiration and since this imitates the labored breathing of heart disease they conclude they are in that class. This has long been known as functional, or nervous, dyspnea. It can easily be distinguished by any doctor, if he takes the trouble to examine the heart of such a person. In fact it can be distinguished by the character of the breathing. The commonest sensation is that the breath doesn't get to the bottom of the lungs.

The breathing is not exactly labored—there is a sighing and a panting type. It isn't present all the time, but comes in spells. You can put it down to heart disease but to the difficult conditions of our time.

speck (D.) of Georgia.

It seems that after President Roosevelt ordered the seizure, the administration was set to have the plant turned over to War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson.

The stage was set for Nelson to take over the sprawling mail order house by the Chicago river, using whatever means necessary to commandeer it and run it until the dispute between management and union was settled.

Then, at the last minute, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones was designated to take over instead.

The reason was that administration officials suddenly remembered that Nelson was chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company before he went to work directing production to win the war.

In that role he was by position, at least—the Sewell Avery of Ward's greatest rival in the mail order business, a rival fighting for trade from all sections of the United States.

Certain officials, the report concludes, are considerably relieved they remembered in time to prevent that Nelson order.

THE NATIONAL PARTY CONVENTIONS in Chicago are drawing ever closer with no word from the executive mansions in Washington and Albany, but politicians are confident it will be Franklin D. Roosevelt vs. Governor Thomas E. Dewey in the November elections.

F. D. R. has well over the majority of Democratic votes needed to nominate him and Dewey, counting uninstructed delegates that undoubtedly will vote for him, has the GOP nomination in the bag.

Roosevelt is expected to maintain his tight-lipped silence right up to the convention, but it is believed he will accept a draft nomination. Dewey has said he is not a candidate, but his supporters predict he, too, will accept.

The Republican convention starts June 26 and the Democrats meet July 19.

ANY PROSPECTS the administration may have had for passage of national service legislation have gone aglimmering as result of the new draft program, easing up deferments for older men.

Members of Congress say there might have been a chance for such legislation last year, but there isn't any now. Proposals to force 4-F's and other workers into war jobs also face the same fate.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1945 by LITTLE, BROWN & CO. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

That night they were all sitting on the Wright porch watching the wind blow the leaves across the lawn. John P. and Jim were debating the presidential campaign with some heat. Ellery sat by himself in a corner, smoking.

"John, you know I don't like these political arguments!" said Hermie. "Goodness, you men get so hot under the collar—"

Jim grinned. "All right, Mother! Then he said casually: 'Oh, by the way, darling, I got a letter from my sister Rosemary this morning. Forgot to tell you.'"

"Yes?" Nora's tone was bright. "How nice. What does she write, dear?"

Pat drifted toward Ellery and sat down at his feet. "The usual stuff. She does say she'd like to meet you all of you."

"Well, I should think so!" declared Hermie. "I'm very anxious to meet your sister, Jim. Is she coming for a visit?"

"Well... I was thinking of asking her, but—"

"Now, Jim," said Nora. "You know I've asked you dozens of times to invite Rosemary to Wrightsville."

"Then it's all right with you, Nor?" asked Jim.

"All right!" Nora laughed. "What's the matter with you? Give me her address and I'll drop her a note tonight."

"Don't bother, darling. I'll write her myself."

When they were alone, a half hour later, Pat said to Ellery: "Nora was scared."

"Yes. It's a poser," Ellery circled his knees with his arms. "Of course, the letter that stirred Jim up this morning was the same letter he just said he got from his sister."

"Ellery, Jim's holding something back."

"No question about it."

"If sister Rosemary just wrote about wanting to come for a visit, or anything as trivial as that... why did Jim burn her letter?"

Mr. Queen kept silent for a long time. Finally he mumbled: "Go to bed, Patsy. I want to think."

On the morning of November 8th, Jim Haight's sister, Rosemary, came to Wrightsville. Ellery Queen saw her get off the train at the Wrightsville station, and trip over to Jim and kiss him, and turn to Nora with animation, presenting a spruce cheek; Mr. Queen also saw the two women laugh and chatter as Jim and the porter picked up the visitor's smart luggage and made for Jim's car.

And Ellery's weather eye clouded over. That night, at Nora's, he had an opportunity to test his first barometric impression.

Soon he decided that Rosemary Haight was no bucolic maiden on an exciting journey; that she was pure metropolis. Also, she was menacingly attractive. Hermie, Pat, and Nora disliked her instantly; Ellery could tell that from the extreme politeness with which they treated her. As for John P., he was charmed and spryly gallant. Hermie reproached him in the silent language of the eye...

Ellery spent a troubled night trying to put Miss Rosemary Haight together in the larger puzzle, and not succeeding.

Jim was busy at the bank these days and left the entertaining of his sister to Nora. Dutifully Nora drove Rosemary about the countryside, showing her the "sights." It was a little difficult for Nora to sustain the charming-hostess illusion, since Rosemary had a suspicious attitude towards many things.

Then there was the gantlet of the town's ladies to run... teas for the party, a winner roast on the lawn one moonlit night, a church social. The ladies were cold. Emmeline DuPré said Rosemary Haight had a streak of "commerce," whatever that was; Clarice Martin thought her clothes too "you-know," and Mrs. Mackenzie at the Country Club said she was a—well, just look at those silly men drooling at her!

The Wright women found themselves constrained to defend her, which was hard, considering that secretly they agreed to the truth of all the charges.

"I wish she'd leave," said Pat to Ellery a few days after Rosemary's arrival. "Isn't that a horrid thing to say? But I do. And now she's sent for her trunk!"

"But I thought she didn't like it here."

"That's what I can't understand, either. Nora says it was supposed to be a 'flying' visit, but Rosemary acts as if she means to dig in for the winter. And Nora can't very well discourage her."

"What's Jim say?"

"Nothing to Nora, but—" Pat lowered her voice and looked around— "apparently he's said something to Rosemary, because I happened in this morning and there was Nora trapped in the serving pantry while Jim and Rosemary, who evidently thought Nora was upstairs, were having an argument in the dining room. That woman has a temper!"

"What was the argument about?" asked Ellery.

"I came in at the tail end and didn't hear anything important, but Nora says it was... well, frightening. Nora wouldn't tell me what she heard, but she was terribly upset—she looked the way she did when she read those letters that tumbled out of the toxicology book."

Rosemary Haight's trunk arrived the next day. Steve Polaris, who ran the local express agency, delivered the trunk himself—an overgrown affair that looked as if it might be packed with imported evening gowns. Steve lugged it up Nora's walk on his broad back. Mr. Queen and Pat who were watching from the Wright porch, saw him carry it into Nora's house and come out a few minutes later accompanied by Rosemary, who was wearing a candid red, white, and blue negligee.

Ellery and Pat saw Rosemary sign Steve's receipt book and go back into the house. As Steve slouched down the walk grinning, Ellery said suddenly, "Pat, do you know this truckman well?"

"Steve? That's the only way you can know him."

Steve tossed his receipt book on the driver's seat of his truck and began to climb in.

"Then distract him. Right now! Get him out of sight of that truck for two minutes!"

Pat instantly called: "Oh, Steve—eve!" and tripped down the porch steps. Ellery followed in a saunter. No one was in sight anywhere on the Hill.

Pat was slipping her arm through Steve's, saying something about her piano, and there wasn't a man she knew strong enough to move it from where it was to where she wanted it, and of course when she saw Steve...

Steve went with Pat into the Wright house, visibly pleased.

Ellery was at the truck in two bounds. He snatched the receipt book from the front seat. Then he took a piece of charred paper from his wallet and began riffling the pages of the book...

25 YEARS AGO
Miss Jennima Dungan and Mrs. Elizabeth Blackstone of Circleville motored to Athens for a visit of several days with Mrs. Minnie Gullett.

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Rooney established what was believed to be a record when they saw their son, Arthur, the youngest of their 12 children, graduate. He was the ninth Rooney child to be graduated from the local high school.

10 YEARS AGO
Circleville temperature reached a new high of 97 degrees. A food shortage was imminent unless a general rain fell within two weeks, according to Dr. W. C. Coffey, federal farm relief director.

ASHVILLE
Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey have received word that their son, Howard, has been promoted to the rank of Captain. Capt. Mahaffey is a surgeon at the Station Hospital at Truax Field, Madison, Wisconsin.

—Ashville—
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hedges expect their son, Sgt. Busse Hedges home over the week end.

—Ashville—
Twenty-two members of the Ashville W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church were present for a luncheon held at the church Friday. The afternoon was spent in marking prices on the many articles brought in for the rummage sale to be held in Columbus at an early date. The ladies wish to thank everyone who donated something for the sale.

—Ashville—
Ashville will soon be represented by a Girl Scout troop which will meet in the Ashville Community Club Room under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Cromley. It is planned to sponsor a Junior Girl Scout group which will be led by Mrs. H. S. Wilson. A large number of girls have expressed a desire to join the troops, and the Community Club is acting as a sponsor. This movement will help fill one of the community's greatest needs; some useful and wholesome activity to occupy a part of the leisure time of our young people.

—Ashville—
Dick Messick and George McDowell, Jr., have joined the Will W. Fischer and Son organization and are working on the Columbus wholesale market. Frederick Puckett begins work Monday at the State Office Building where he was employed last Summer.

—Ashville—
Two head of cattle have been killed by lightning on the Howard Hedges' farm this Spring. One was a pure-bred cow owned by Busse Hedges, who is now in the U. S. Army.

—Ashville—
Work is progressing satisfactorily on the dehydrator plant being constructed on the Jackson Pike just north of the South Bloomfield road. The cement work has been completed and the installment of machinery is being started. It is hoped to have the plant in operation in the near future.

PLAYED IN MILLION-DOLLAR BOND GAME IN HAWAII

FIVE EX-BIG LEAGUE STARS, now in the Navy, participated in an all-star baseball game in Honolulu at which more than $1,000,000 in war bonds were pledged. A crowd of 20,000 witnessed the game, won by the Navy, 4 to 2, over a Hawaiian team. The ex-big leaguers above are, left to right, Hugh Casey of the Dodgers, Tom Ferrick of the Indians, Vern Olsen of the Cubs, Walter Masterson of the Senators and Jack Hallett of the Pirates. All were pitchers in the big leagues.

PENSIVE STRONG FAVORITE FOR BELMONT STAKES

NEW YORK, June 3 — Pensive was an odds-on favorite to take this afternoon's 76th running of the Belmont Stakes and thus set into place the third and final jewel in turfdom's triple crown. The game, stretch-running son of England's famed Hyperion was expected to go to the post at odds of about 7 to 10 for his mile and a half clash with seven other three-year-olds at Belmont park.

Winner of the mile and a quarter Kentucky Derby and the mile and three sixteenths Preakness with stout-hearted dashes through the stretch, the brightest star in the Calumet colors figured to like the longer Belmont route even better than the shorter tests. He is bred for distance.

His chief contention was expected to come from Platter and Who Goes There, running as the George D. Widener entry and pointed for a one-two sprint-and-stretch punch for the $50,000 added purse.

Who Goes There, winner of the Withers mile, has tremendous early speed to wear down the pack and set the stage for a stretch duel between Platter and Pensive, according to the way the race is being run in advance on paper.

JIM TOBIN GETS SWEET REVENGE AGAINST REDS

BOSTON, Mass., June 3—Jim Tobin, who was the victim of no-hit, no-run pitching stint by Cincinnati's Clyde Shoun in his last start against the Redlegs, today had sweet revenge.

The big right-hander shut out the Reds with three hits as the Boston Braves scored a 4-0 victory in the first of a four-game series. It was Tobin's third shut-out of the season.

Ed Heusser pitched four-hit ball for the Reds, but five walks and shaky fielding cost the former Pacific Coast league ace a bitter defeat.

Manager Bill McKechnie nominated Bucky Walters to take the mound for the Reds in today's game. Nate Andrews was scheduled to hurl for the Braves.

KATE RETURNING EARLY

Kate Smith's Friday night variety program will leave the air earlier and return earlier in the Fall. The program of June 9 will be the last of the Spring season--but the program will return in September instead of October, as in years past.

LAVALLE ON IVORIES

Maestro Paul Lavalie is most popularly known as the expert clarinetist-conductor on the Sunday night "Basin St." program. What isn't generally known is that the maestro is also a cracker-jack pianist--so don't be surprised if you hear a boogie-woogie piano solo played by the maestro one of these days.

AD-LIB MASTER

Ed East is the untitled king of the ad-lib, with a well-nigh incredible record of 75 minutes daily, five days a week. In addition to "Ladies Be Seated," Ed also runs "Breakfast in Bedlam." On both programs, Ed not only does running-fire commentary, but he also engages in repartee with guests--which is an even tougher assignment.

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

12--Raising a Suit Bid

IN CONTRACT bridge, it is your desire to bid a game if a game can be made by your side, as there is a big bonus of points for bidding and making a game which you cannot score by merely taking the tricks. It must be both bid and made to give you that bonus. The same applies to bidding a slam, to get the big premiums for bidding and making a Little Slam of 12 tricks or a Grand Slam of all 13 tricks.

There is only one exception to the desirability of bidding a game or slam, if your side can make it. That comes when an opponent has bid so high that you reckon you can score more points by beating his contract, in which case you will generally wish to double him. Ordinarily, if your partner has made a suit bid, one of the things you consider is the question of whether or not you should raise his bid and, if so, how high. To do this, your first requirement is to be sure that his suit will be safe for your side to use as a trump suit. That means chiefly that your side should have at least eight cards of the suit. If it has only seven, the opponents have six, which usually will not be evenly divided between the opponents. One will have four and the other two more often than they will have three apiece. If that is the case, the player with four may make a lot of trouble for the declarer. But, if your side has eight, it will usually prove a safe trump suit.

Since your partner's suit bid has guaranteed at least four trumps, a total of four in your hand will render the suit pretty safe. You may then consider raising him, and want to know how good your hand will be in support of his. Here is an accurate way to value your "supporting tricks": Trumps-- (a) One for having 4 trumps, 1 each for any additional ones. (b) One each for ace, king or queen. (c) For chance to use them separately, in ruffing side suits, 2½ if you are blank in some suit, 1½ for a singleton, ½ for a doubleton. (Add your trump values under these three, never counting more than a total one less than your total number of trumps.)

Side Suits-- (a) High cards. Count 1½ for each ace, 1 for each king, ½ for each queen. (b) Low cards. Count same as in original bid hand, ½ each for first two cards beyond the top three, 1 each for additional ones. Totalling these, under the headings of supporting tricks in trumps and side suits, will give you the gross number of tricks your hand should be worth to your partner. By adding that amount to 4½--the minimum which you should count him as having--you will reach a grand total pretty close to the exact number he probably will be able to make in the play.

Since his bid of 1-Spade guaranteed probable ability to take a minimum of 4½ tricks--with a maximum as high as about 7½--if your hand counts up to be good for at least 2½ and contains four trumps, you can afford to give him a raise to two, rather than pass, so that if he has a maximum, the side won't miss a game. There are times, of course, when it is better to make a bid different from a raise, but we will get to that later. For the present, we are concerned with your ability to raise.

In considering a raise to more than two, it will pay you to treat his hand as a minimum, with only 4½ playing tricks. Hence, you should not jump the bid to higher than two unless you have at least 5½ "supporting tricks," so that the total in sight is at least about ten. If you raise him to two and he then raises to three, he has indicated more than a minimum, at least about six playing tricks, so you will need about four "supporting tricks" to go to four. You ordinarily should have four supporting tricks also to bid two in his suit if the intervening opponent has overcalled his bid--for reasons we will get to later.

Pickaway County's Fifth War Loan Quota Set At $1,476,000

BOND SALESMEN TO ORGANIZE AT PARLEY MONDAY

Clark Will, Chairman For Campaign, Hopeful Of Local Success

PUBLIC RESPONSE URGED

Organization Plans Contact With All Individuals And All Homes

Quota for Pickaway county in the Fifth War Loan campaign, starting June 12 will be $1,476,000. The quota is $232,000 more than the Fourth War Loan quota.

Clark Will, general chairman of the drive, announced a meeting of leaders will be held Monday evening for organization. Zone chairmen will be appointed, and the city will probably be divided into four sections with a chairman in charge of each.

In the last campaign Pickaway county exceeded its individual quota by a sizeable margin and the chairman feels confident that it will be able to do as well if not better in this drive.

The individual's quota in the Fifth War Loan drive is $326,000 which is larger than the previous quota, but not much in excess of the amount that was reached.

The corporation and institutional quota for the Fifth War Loan drive also is larger than the quota for the previous drive.

The national quota for the campaign is $16,000,000,000 with a non-banking quota of $10,000,000,000. Ohio's share of this total as set by the treasury department at Washington is $797,000,000, an increase of 18.6 percent over the Fourth War Loan.

Mr. Will pointed out that all the chairmen are persons who are otherwise engaged and whose time is limited in this work and asks the cooperation of all citizens in the county to put this Fifth War Loan drive over.

"Every man and woman in the county," Mr. Will said, "should realize the importance of his or her individual participation in the financing of the war and that our financing should keep step with our efforts on the battlefield. To do this and to attain our goal will require the concerted effort of every citizen of the county."

Following the reorganization meeting Monday night a series of sectional meetings will be held and a concerted effort made by the chairmen to have every house in the county visited.

KROGER TO BUY HEAVILY DURING WAR LOAN DRIVE

The Kroger Grocery & Baking Company will subscribe in the Fifth War Loan $3,000,000 in War Bonds for allocation on the basis of $1,000 a store in states where it operates. Further bond purchases will also be made in Cincinnati where general offices of the company are located.

Kroger's action in buying bonds in this campaign is in keeping with company policy to participate in activities in every community where the company's stores are located. Red Cross contributions were distributed among 18 states on a basis of size of operations in each one, and in the National War Fund drives likewise the company pursues the same policy of local contributions.

Richard Harman Wins DFC for Heroic Role In Raids Against Huns

Extraordinary achievement in numerous combat missions over Germany and enemy-occupied Europe have brought the Distinguished Flying Cross to Technical Sergeant Richard Harman, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Harman of Circleville.

Sergeant Harman is top turret gunner on the Eighth Air Force Flying Fortress "Troublemaker." According to official information given by the Eighth AAF, Sgt. Harman has fought through some of the stiffest fighter opposition and thickest flak the Nazis could send up to try to stop the bomber formations. Among some of the targets he has visited are Berlin, Brunswick, Regensburg, Stettin and Kiel.

Commenting on some of his experiences, Sgt. Harman said, "Regensburg is one I'll never forget. A Junkers 88 had knocked out one of our engines. We came home on three engines, subjected to fighter attacks and flak all the way. When we finally got home and were safely on the ground I counted 104 flak holes in the plane."

The DFC citation read, in part, "The courage, coolness and skill displayed by Sgt. Harman on all these occasions of combat over Europe reflect the greatest credit both on himself and the Armed a radio network, and a promoter of embryo Presidents.

After the dinner, Luce and others sat around chatting. Among other things, he declared that an anti-Roosevelt trend was sweeping the entire country. Then, paraphrasing Henry Mencken's wise crack of 1936 which he will never live down, Luce opined:

"Roosevelt could be licked by a one-eyed Chinaman."

A few days later, came the Lister Hill-Claude Pepper victories in Alabama and Florida; the Starnes, Costello and Dies exits from congress, and the victory of Wayne Morse, a pro-Roosevelt Republican, in Oregon.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Nelson Rockefeller, refreshing co-ordinator of inter-American relations, held a conference of Pan American development commissions in New York recently, and as part of the entertainment, took the good neighbors out to his ancestral home on the Hudson near Tarrytown, N. Y.

Most of the Rockefeller family are teetotalers, especially Nelson's father, John D. Jr. Nelson never takes a drink, but he recognizes that there never has been a dry movement in Latin America and that Latinos do not understand the absence of alcoholic refreshments.

Perhaps because of this, perhaps because his teetotaler father was absent that day, Nelson was brave enough to break Rockefeller tradition and serve cocktails. They were about the best cocktails that ever passed through the stately stone portals of the Rockefeller estate—and perhaps the only ones. Nelson himself did not drink them, but his good neighbors did and enjoyed them immensely. In fact, so much so that one good neighbor from Mexico insisted on rolling down a hill, hands over his head, to show how easy it was to roll downhill—once you know how. There were no casualties.

UNIQUE CONGRESSMAN

Rarely does a congressman complain about getting too many government contracts for his district. But that was exactly what Representative Richard Welch, California Republican, did the other day during a congressional hearing on ship repairs which took place in New York.

"It is pretty hard to understand why men should be transferred from here (New York) to the West Coast to build ships," Welch said. "Now if a New Yorker can build or repair ships on the West Coast, he can do it here. I always felt that New York did not get its just proportion of the shipbuilding."

Note—Welch is not opposed for re-election this year.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Sergeant William J. Goode, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Goode of Circleville Route 4, is now overseas with the Engine Repair Section of an Air Service Command depot "somewhere in England."

Allison and Packard Merlin engines are given complete overhauls by the technicians of this section. In addition, they manufacture dies, parts, jigs, and fixtures which are needed to meet the ever-changing demands of aerial warfare.

Sgt. Goode is one of the men recently commended by Lieutenant General Carl Shaatz, commanding general of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, when production at the depot was increased by more than 100 percent.

Before entering the Army, he was employed by the Container Corporation of America in Circleville.

This is the new address of Jack Hatz: E. M. 3/c, U. S. S. Salamaua, CVE. 96, E-Dir., c/o Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, Cal.

T/5 Turney Owens, who was drafted into the U. S. Army in December, 1942, has been promoted from private first class to technician fifth grade and also been awarded a good conduct medal. He is the son of Mrs. Margaret Owens, Wayne township.

Private Orval M. Carothers, who has been spending a 21-day furlough with his wife, Mrs. Manley Carothers and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Carothers, 327 East Union street, has returned to duty at his new station. Pvt. Carothers had been stationed in Canada, along the Alcan Highway, for the last 16 months and has been transferred to a new station in the United States. His friends may write to him at the following address: Pvt. Orval M. Carothers, 35418993, 3593 S. W. Barracks 215, Fletcher General Hospital, Cambridge, Ohio.

After a two-week vacation furlough, Private Clyde J. Leist has a change of address: ASN 15126355, 400th Fighter Sqdn., De Ridder AAB, De Ridder, La.

Along with other members of his unit, Private Arthur C. Lee of Kingston has earned the commendation of his commanding general for diligence and attention to duty during March and April at an Eighth AAF Fighter Wing, England.

In the commendation, which was issued to the headquarters squadron of his fighter wing, Brigadier General Jesse Auton of Covington, Ky., pointed out the importance of every job including such routine duties as guard, clerk and KP in the destruction of the enemy.

Private Lee is assigned to the wing security section.

Flowers ordered for Mother's Day by William Strawser, who is stationed somewhere in England, were delivered Friday to his wife, Mrs. Goldie Strawser, and her mother, Mrs. Nellie Hampp, 403 East Franklin street. Strawser is a member of the Seabees and has been in service with that corps for seven months, five of them being on duty in England. His address is: W. H. Strawser SF 1/c, C.B.M.U. 584 FPO, New York, New York.

Correct address of Lieutenant Glenn W. Barnhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Montclair avenue, is: Lieut. Glenn W. Barnhart 0-2058360 Section H, 3501 Base Unit, Boca Raton A. A. F., Boca Raton, Fla.

Edwin J. Hill wishes his friends to know that his address is: Edwin J. Hill A. R. M. 3/c, Composite Squadron, VC-55 c/o FPO New York, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith, 130 York street, have received word from their son, Allen, that he is somewhere in Australia at a submarine base. He says that he likes the country and that it is like the States, only they are far behind us in many things. He mentions that their 1929 automobiles are almost new and that they are all right-hand drives. He thinks that he will be there permanently. His address is: Allen B. Smith GM 3/c, S/M Submarine Repair Unit, Navy 134, c/o Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, Cal. He would appreciate hearing from his friends. Smith was at one time an employee of The Daily Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have two other sons in the service, Leland S 1/c of the U. S. Coast Guard service, and Lloyd, who is in the 37th Division, somewhere in Bougainville. Lloyd has been overseas two years this month.

Young Men of 17

May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

ENLISTMENT in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews. At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team

Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the

AAF air combat crew is more than just planes and men. The combat crew is a team . . . the greatest fighting team the world has ever seen . . . with Gunners, Bombardiers, Navigators and Pilots flying and fighting together, to win.

And any young man who wants AAF wings should keep this ideal of teamwork uppermost in his mind. It is the key to AAF successes in battle. It will be the key to his own success in the AAF.

If you want to fly with the AAF, you may apply at any AAF Examining Board for enrollment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. Upon passing the preliminary qualifying physical and mental tests, you will become a member of the U. S. Army Air Forces—on inactive duty. This means that you will not be called for training until you have reached your 18th birthday. If you are at work you may remain on the job until you are 18. If you are in high school, you may elect to finish the semester you are in when you become 18. If you are a high school graduate, not over 17 years and 9 months, you may elect to take advantage of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which provides free college training for men approaching military age.

When called, you will first be given "basic" training. During this period, you will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether you will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot.

Your Place on the AAF Team

If you have an outstandingly high apti-

tude rating for a particular position, you may be given an opportunity to compete for the classification that you prefer. But it is important to remember that all jobs on the AAF team are vitally important . . . that air combat crews not only are chosen from the very cream of the nation's young men, but that each seat in every plane must be filled by the man best qualified to fill it.

Gunners go into actual combat as non-commissioned officers. In addition to being the world's best aerial marksmen, gunners may qualify as trained technicians—in radio, armament or airplane mechanics. Pilots, Navigators, and Bombardiers are graduated from training as 2nd Lieutenants or Flight Officers.

Your job, and your rank, in the AAF will depend upon your own demonstrated abilities. For full information as to qualifying for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, see your nearest AAF Examining Board or local Army Recruiting Station.

For Pre-Aviation Training

Whether or not you have yet reached 17, you can begin now to prepare yourself to qualify for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. See your local Civil Air Patrol officers about C.A.P. Cadet Training . . . also see your High School principal or adviser about recommended courses in the Air Service Division of the High School Victory Corps. Both offer excellent pre-aviation training . . . and help point the way to AAF wings.

YANKS PUSH WITHIN 13 MILES OF ROME

Allies To Fight If Germans Defend Rome

DESTRUCTION OF HUNS DECLARED AS CHIEF AIM

Military Measures Will Be Taken To Eject Nazis From Eternal City

DECISION UP TO HITLER

All Efforts Will Aim At Safeguarding Civilians, Cultural Works

NAPLES, June 3—The German army will be ejected from Rome by "military measures," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today, if the Nazi high command chooses to defend the city.

With Fifth Army spearheads already within 13 miles of Rome, the supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre reaffirmed that every effort would be made by the Allies to safeguard both the civilian population and cultural works of the Eternal City.

In a formal declaration, General Wilson said:

"The Allied military authorities are confronted by a ruthless enemy in Italy, and are interested solely in the destruction and elimination of the German forces in that country."

They have taken, and will continue to take, every possible precaution during the course of the campaign to spare the innocent civilians and cultural and religious monuments of permanent value to civilization."

He added that the Allied leaders are particularly "deeply conscious of the unique position occupied by Rome as one of the chief historic and cultural centers of the world." However, he continued:

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take military measures to eject them."

Moreover, the general added, the Allies are well aware that Rome, as the seat of his holiness the Pope contains the neutral state of Vatican City. Only a German stand there will force the Allies to take military action against the city.

"The Allies have only taken, and will only take military action against Rome, in so far as the Germans use the city, its highways, and its roads for their military purposes," the statement continued.

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take appropriate military measures to eject them. It is therefore the sincere hope of his majesty's government and the United States government that the enemy will not make this ill-considered choice."

CUBANS CHEER CHIEF

HAVANNA, June 3—Thousands of Cubans celebrated today following the election of Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin to the presidency, succeeding Gen. Fulgencio Batista. In the absence of complete election returns, Dr. Carlos Saladrigas, government candidate, conceded the election to his adversary.

Courts May Turn Deaf Ear To Ward

Ruling That WLB Orders Are Final Indicates Avery Defeat

WASHINGTON, June 3—The War Labor Board, facing the possibility of a new showdown with Montgomery Ward and Company, found its position appreciably strengthened today by a United States court of appeals ruling that its orders are not subject to court review.

In a half dozen cases involving WLB orders to Ward units scattered throughout the country, Sewell Avery, board chairman of the mail order house, has filed suits challenging the board's jurisdiction and contesting the legality of its directives.

The opinion of Justice Henry W. Edgerton, of the District of Columbia court of appeals, may fore-shadow, however, the ultimate dismissal of all of Avery's court cases. One, involving U. S. Gypsum, which Avery also heads, previously was dismissed in district court and is on appeal.

Moreover, the ruling strengthened the position of the WLB as it deliberates the question of whether to order an extension of the expired contract between the CIO department workers union and Ward's Chicago branch, which recently was seized and then released by the government over just such an issue.

In a hearing before the board last Wednesday, William Powell, an attorney for Ward's, reiterated the company's oft-expressed objection to such an order, contending that the government over just such an issue.

AIRMEN URGE DECORATION FOR BRITISH WOMAN

LONDON, June 3—American officers of a United States Army Air Force station suggested today that Betty Everitt, gallant English woman who lost her life attempting to rescue members of the American crew of a fighter bomber which crashed and burst into flames near her home, be given the highest possible posthumous decoration by the Army.

And Col. Penden, Henderson, N. C., commander of the station suggested America give Betty Everitt's four-year-old son, Tony, a scholarship "in memorial to her courage in trying to rescue my boys from a burning plane."

A total of $2,800 has already been donated to the fund. Col. Penden added that her sacrifice was as great as any hero who gives his life in combat. "She knew fire would explode the bombs and ammunition at any moment, but she went right ahead trying to get those wounded Americans out before it was too late."

Mrs. Everitt helped two gunners struggle clear of the burning mass of twisted metal, but an explosion put an abrupt end to her efforts. Tony's father was killed in the war some months ago. Unaware of his mother's death the boy spends the day playing ball with members of the ground crew and admiring the fliers.

Col. Penden announced his group had not yet decided how to give the $2,800 which they donated, but they want to set up some kind of trust to make sure "he will be taken care of long after we have gone home."

HUN UNIFORMS SCARCE NOW IN ROME STREETS

NEW YORK, June 3—"German uniforms have become increasingly scarce" in Rome, the Swiss newspaper Journal De Geneve reported today, adding that trolley and bus service in the Italian capital has been suspended.

The dispatch, emanating from Rome, added that "hardly any military vehicles are seen except ambulances carrying wounded soldiers from the front." FCC heard the wireless transmission of the story.

De Gaulle Ready To Go To London Parley, But Lacks Transportation

WASHINGTON, June 3—Obstacles appeared today in the path of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the French National Committee of Liberation, which might delay his going to London in response to the invitation of Prime Minister Churchill.

A spokesman for the French delegation in Washington said the invitation had been accepted and the general is ready to leave Algiers at any moment. But as yet no transportation has been provided.

In diplomatic circles it was intimated that De Gaulle might not leave for some time, in view of the fact that no clear understanding has been reached on the authority Britain and the United States are willing to extend to the French committee after the invasion.

De Gaulle was reported insisting on an agreement with his committee—which he calls a provisional government—along the same lines as the agreements already made with the Dutch, Belgian, and Norwegian governments for civil control of their respective countries.

These agreements were announced May 16. But as yet no such agreement has been reached regarding France.

French officials in Washington said the committee has completed its own post-invasion plans, but desires to know whether they are in line with Allied plans. In short, (Continued on Page Two)

WALLACE ASKS COOPERATION IN POST-WAR PLANS

NEW YORK, June 3—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace called for complete postwar cooperation between Russia, the United States, and their Allies for postwar peace and development in a speech reported by the OWI today.

Wallace spoke Thursday in the Irkutsk provincial theatre, addressing his audience in Russian. During the speech he compared Siberia with the far west of early America, and added that Siberia, the northwestern sections of the United States and Canada and all of Alaska would play an important part in post-war reconstruction.

Wallace said: "Now, when the early dawn of the post-war world is beginning slowly to rise on the horizon, it becomes quite clear that only complete collaboration of our two great countries and of their Allies can give the world conditions of peace and regular development."

"In the great work of post-war reconstruction it will be essential that in the interests of the whole world, the important role of the northwestern part of the United States, Canada, Alaska and Soviet Siberia should be recognized. These enormous, sparsely populated territories were conquered in our time by airplanes. Now they need to be developed in both their agricultural economy and their industry."

CUT-BACKS MAY HIT FIRST AT TROUBLE POINTS

WASHINGTON, June 3—Blunt notice that war production plants plagued by strikes would be the first to feel the axe of cut-backs in production was discussed in congress today as one means of halting an apparent rise in the number of actual and threatened walkouts.

The proposal was brought into the open by Sen. Reed (R) Kansas, who suggested the War and Navy departments announce that in closing of war plants they will first close the most inefficient.

"It is probable that these plants that have the most strikes are also the most inefficient, or have the highest costs of production," said Reed. "Such an announcement might have some effect."

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson had before him Reed's proposal for closing of most inefficient plants first, a proposal growing out of the discontinuance of the Brewster Aeronautical Company's Corsair fighting plane contract.

This plant, Reed said, was shown to be the highest cost producer of three plants making the plane. At one time it was involved in serious labor troubles.

Reed said a study of war production reveals an astounding difference in the cost of producing the same weapons and articles of war in different plants. He said a variation of 20 to 100 percent in cost was found among 10 mid-west munitions plants.

Announcement of such a policy, he said, would be certain to lead to extraordinary efforts by both management and labor to increase efficiency. The efficiency of a plant, he said, often is due more to good management than to any other factor.

PERFECT MARRIAGE ENDS

HOLLYWOOD, June 3—Another one of Hollywood's "perfect marriages" was on the rocks today as film star Joan Fontaine won a divorce from actor Brian Aherne. Charging cruelty, the 1942 academy award winner testified that she "felt like a kind of guest" in her own home. The couple married at Del Monte, Cal., in 1939.

RUSSIAN BASES BEING USED BY YANK AIR FORCE

Shuttle Bombing Brings All Hun Industry Under Allied Bombsights

FIRST RAID SUCCESSFUL

Operation Ushers In New Momentous Chapter To History Of War

MOSCOW, June 3—American heavy bombers and long-range fighter planes employed Russian airbases today in shuttle-bombing which brought under Allied bombsights all German industry and was revealed as the first military achievement of the historic Moscow and Teheran conferences.

In the first operation ushering in a momentous new chapter in the history of air war, sleek U. S. Fortresses and death-dealing Mustang fighters swooped down on the air-dromes somewhere in Russia after blasting Axis targets in Eastern Europe.

Official announcement of the first shuttle-bombing attack between Allied and Russian territory was revealed late last night at Moscow and constituted the first disclosure that American-operated air-dromes had been established in the Soviet Union.

"On the morning of June 2, large forces of American bombers, under fighter escort, dealt blows at military objectives in Romania," the official bulletin declared.

One Bomber Lost

"Part of the bombers that participated in the raid landed at bases in Soviet territory. One bomber and one fighter failed to land."

There was no indication in the initial announcement where the raiders had taken off, nor their particular objectives.

(However, about 750 American bombers and an equal number of fighters were known to have flown from bases in Italy to plaster seven railroad yards in the Balkans yesterday. The targets of these Mediterranean air force raiders included Cluj, 200 miles northwest of the Romanian capital.)

HOG SALES IN COUNTY SOAR TO NEW PEAK

More hogs were sold in Pickaway county this week than probably ever before in history. Harry Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association said that his organization disposed of 2,000 head of which two-thirds were top hogs selling up to $13.80. The others were lights, stags, sows and medium quality.

Mr. Briggs said that sales have been so heavy that growers are being asked to call the stockyards before delivering top hogs as in some instances the hogs can not be moved immediately.

Mr. Briggs called attention to the fact that so long as the present floor price remains in effect that hogs in the 240 to 270 weights may sell as high as $14.05 while the peak for top hogs in the 180 to 240 class is set at $14.80.

SEEING EYE WINS FIVE YEAR TILT FOR BIG LEGACY

NEW YORK, June 3—The Seeing Eye, Inc., of Morristown, N. J., which provides dog guides for blind persons, received a legacy of $123,205 today from the estate of Mrs. Isabel D. McNie, ending five years of litigation over her will.

The late Alexander Woolcott was a co-trustee of the estate, the appointment going to him after Mrs. McNie had heard the author and humorist describe the Seeing Eye in a radio broadcast in 1934. Her will, in which she left the fortune to the Seeing Eye, was unsuccessfully contested.

American Lieutenant Takes Anchor City Of Hun Line By Mistake

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, VALMONTONE SECTOR, June 3—Valmontone, anchor town of the Nazi last ditch line before Rome, is in American hands today, "by mistake."

After bloody tank and infantry battles raged for days before the town, German defenders evacuated Valmontone when American forces seized commanding positions east of the Via Cassilina.

Friday, Lieut. William Alexander, of Tarboro, N. C., of the combat engineers, captured Valmontone "by mistake."

Lieut. Alexander said: "Honestly, I'd been given to understand that our troops were in the town. I was assigned to make a reconnaissance of Highway Six as it goes through the town and also to look for mines."

"You can imagine my surprise when Italian civilians came running out shouting that the 'Tedeschi' were gone and I was the first 'Americano' to enter."

The soldiers listening to Alexander at a front line battalion command post were not sure whether they could imagine his surprise or not, recalling that two combat engineers, Capt. Ben Souza of Honolulu and Lieut. Francis Bickley of Philadelphia made the junction between Anzio beachhead forces and the main army last week.

German retreat from Valmontone was assured when a platoon under Lieut. Roger Phillips, of Manhattan, Kan., dug in across Via Cassilina to the east.

Other troops commanded by Capt. Robert Hahn, of Hagerstown, Md., crossed the highway and took up commanding positions.

Companies led by Captains Charles Morgan, Talladega, Ala., Otto Gunst, Metuchen, N. J., and Raymond Steere, Junction City, Kan., took up strong positions south of the highway to assure that no retreating Nazis could use the route.

Some Nazis, apparently including sections of the Hermann Goering division escaped northwest on the highway, but fast-working infantry got heavy weapons west of the town in time to intercept three truckloads of the enemy, killing many and capturing others.

Lieut. James Dorsey, of Irwin, Pa., led a battle patrol which discovered a German observation post, captured two of the four soldiers there and wounded a third, and seized the radio which had been used to direct the enemy's artillery fire.

To the northwest of Valmontone tanks of the battalion commanded by Lieut. Col. Bogardus Cairns, of Decatur, Ga., also smashed forward to the highway, expanding American control of the Via Cassilina.

Valmontone today is just another smashed-up Italian city. The handful of civilians who remained cooped-up in a partially-wrecked church throughout the siege are grateful to the Americans for deliverance.

Still they got an explosive reminder that Valmontone is not yet out of the war. The Germans shelled the town and highway area with nebelwerfers, "screaming meemies," and 88 mm. guns.

SLIP OF TONGUE INDICATES F. D. R. PLANS TO STAY

WASHINGTON, June 3—Members of congress were discussing today the possibility that President Roosevelt, by a slip of the tongue, may have indicated he is a candidate for a fourth term.

The President was quoted as asking one of his opponents in the 1936 election, "are you going to run against me this time?"

The question was addressed to Rep. William Lemke (R) N. D., as Mr. Roosevelt greeted a congressional delegation attending a White House reception.

When Lemke replied in the negative, the President, in what members of the congressional party described as a "quick attempt at recovery," said: "Maybe neither one of us had better run this time."

The remark evoked general laughter and the question of the fourth term was not pursued. At the time he opposed Mr. Roosevelt, Lemke was a candidate of the Union Party,

FIGHT PROMPTS DETROIT STRIKE

Thousands Quit War Plant Following Discharge Of Belligerents

DETROIT, June 3—Several thousand war workers at Continental Motors Corp., stopped work today after three union stewards were dismissed following a fist fight which involved a foreman, a superintendent, the stewards and another employee.

Detroit's newest work stoppage came as a 21-day strike of 450 workers at the Stroh Brewing Company ended and walkouts in the Ford Highland Park and Lincoln plants affected production of tank engines and B-24 Liberator bombers.

The trouble started at Continental, in the automatic screw machine department. The foreman, it was reported, had an argument with a worker and assertedly struck him. The stewards and superintendent became involved in the altercation and the stewards were fired.

Work stopped at 5:30 a. m. The day shift reported as usual, but once inside the plant the employees refused to work. The employees are members of UAW-CIO local 280.

40 PERCENT OF VETS SHUN JOBS IN HOME TOWNS

NEW YORK, June 3—Forty percent of the veterans being discharged from the army in the eastern section of the country not only do not want their old jobs back, but do not even want to return to their old communities, a War department survey disclosed today.

Fletcher Waller, assistant director of civilian personnel and training, said that a similar survey conducted on the west coast showed an even higher percentage of men who did not want to go back to their previous occupations.

ENEMY DEFENSE IN DEPTH FAILS TO HALT DRIVE

COUNTER-ATTACK FAILS

Fighting Flares Following Long Period Of Quiet On Russian Front

By International News Service
American forces battered their way through enemy "defense in depth" in their two-pronged drive on Rome today, occupying Monte Castellaccio and enlarging their penetration north of Velletri.

The Yanks, who had pushed spearheads to within 13 miles of Rome after their brilliant feat of capturing Velletri and Valmontone, were encountering Nazi defenses of "considerable depth."

"Although Velletri and Valmontone now have been taken by the Fifth Army after heavy fighting," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's headquarters announced, "the enemy's defensive positions in this sector have not yet been broken."

To the north, though, the announcement added the "penetration has been enlarged." The Yanks occupied Monte Castellaccio.

British Advance

British Eighth Army units further south pressed hard on the heels of some eight Nazi divisions trapped by the cutting of the Via Cassilina, last good escape route toward Rome. The British forces rolled forward to take Veroli and send forward units on to Alatri.

British and Canadian units pushing northwest are driving the trapped Nazi units toward American-held Valmontone astride the Via Cassilina.

In retreat the Nazis must use secondary roads which will not accommodate their heavy equipment.

The aerial blasting of occupied Europe took a great stride forward as the offensive rolled on in Italy. Heavy bombers based in the East attacked Balkan objectives and proceeded to land at U. S. Air Bases set up in Russia.

Bombers Active

Strong formations of Britain-based bombers and fighters roared over the cloud-covered channel today after RAF night bombers had smashed the Trappes railway yard in the Paris area, and hit military targets in Northern France.

The German industrial city of Leverkusen, north of Cologne, also was hit, and enemy-held waters were mined.

At least seven Nazi interceptor planes were shot down, and 17 British bombers failed to return from the raids. On the Russian land front, fighting flared after a long period of inactivity. A Russian communiqué reported that German forces attacking north of the Romanian rail junction of Iasi had driven a small wedge into Soviet lines at the cost of tremendous losses. A later German announcement said that Russian troops had (Continued on Page Two)

N A Z I IDEOLOGY SEEN AS THREAT FOLLOWING WAR

NEW YORK, June 3—U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas pointed to Nazi ideology today as the greatest menace to the world after the United Nations have achieved victory.

Speaking at dedicatory exercises at the New Free World house, Justice Douglas said that after the armies have laid down their arms, the "millennium will not have arrived," and warned that the United States must first solve its own problems before it can assume world leadership.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, speaking on the same program, defended the Atlantic charter as a document which must be read, understood and adhered to in the light of the period in which it was written. "It means exactly what it says," he declared in criticizing recent attempts to interpret it.

Bases Big Help

With bases on Soviet territory—where they can land to be refueled and reloaded with bombs and ammunition—the American no longer will have to negotiate round-trip flights from their distant bases in Italy, Britain and North Africa to their targets and return.

Shortly after the first bulletin told of the arrival of the American formations, the eastern command of the U. S. Strategic Air Forces issued its initial communiqué from its new headquarters in Russia. The American announcement said the Romanian targets had been "selected by our Russian ally" and added that only "slight" enemy airdromes on the route of the Allied strategic force and providing area fighter support."

A special announcement broadcast over the Moscow radio by the Soviet government declared that the westward advance of the Red Army had brought its area of operations within the range of the air forces of the United States and Great Britain.

"In order to ensure that the efforts of the combined air forces shall be concentrated on the most important objectives for the United Nations, direct contact between the respective staffs has been established," the statement added.

Brief but happy celebrations marked the arrival of the American airmen who were enthusiastically greeted by U. S. and Soviet soldiers who had worked day and night for the last few months preparing the bases. After the initial rejoicing, the ground crews sprang to work, servicing the Fortresses and Mustangs for another call on the Axis enroute back to their bases in Italy, Africa or Britain.

The operation was the first time that long-range fighters had participated in any shuttle air attack. Previously, such missions between Britain and Southern Italy or North Africa were made only by heavy bombers.

Indeed, as he watched some of the bombers land, Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, head of the American military mission to the U. S. S. R., declared:

"History was made today... this shuttle bombing makes vulnerable all of Germany's industrial facilities."

GERMAN ACE DIES

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Nazi DNB agency revealed today that Maj. Friedrich Karl Mueller, German fighter squadron commander with an alleged 140 air victories to his credit, has died "a hero's death." Though the enemy broadcast heard by the FCC did not reveal how Mueller died, it insisted the Allies "did not vanquish him."

A flint axe-head believed to be 200,000 years old was found in a gravel pit near Doncaster, England.

Courts May Turn Deaf Ear To Ward

ing it was beyond WLB's jurisdiction and violated both the Wagner act and the War Labor Disputes Act.

The court of appeals' ruling said: "It is clear and indisputable that no statute authorizes review of the War Labor Board's orders. As we point out below, the legislative history of the War Labor Disputes Act implies a positive intention that these orders should not be reviewed."

The appellates in the case, the employers' group of motor freight carriers, contended in presenting their case that non-compliance with WLB orders might result in certification of the case to the White House and seizure of their facilities by the President.

"If it be true, as appellates suggest, that the President may ultimately take possession of their plants and facilities, that possibility is irrelevant, not only because it is speculative but also because it is independent of the board's order," the court stated.

"Neither the broad constitutional power nor the broad statutory power of the President to take and use property in furtherance of the war effort depend on any action of the WLB."

The decision, first to be rendered by any appellate court holding that WLB orders are not subject to review, went on to say the demand that the court enjoin the board's order amounted to a demand that "we prevent the board from giving the President advice."

FIFTEEN COUNTY YOUTHS REACH MILITARY AGE

Fifteen Pickaway county youths became 18 years of age during May and registered with the local draft board. These boys will probably be included in the next contingent of men sent to Fort Hayes for pre-physical examinations during June. The local board has not received notice of the number that will be called this month, but it is expected that the total will be much smaller than the May contingent.

Those who registered during May were Bernard E. Lockard, Circleville; Ralph E. Dunkle, Rt. 2, Ashville; Carl W. Speakman, Rt. 1, New Holland; Richard W. Nothstine, Rt. 1, Ashville; Walter W. Koch, Ashville; Harry E. Robinson, Circleville; John R. Eccard, Rt. 3, Circleville; Donald E. Quince, Circleville; William J. Lindsey, Rt. 2, Ashville; Chester C. Peters, Rt. 2, Ashville; Thomas E. Invasion Jitters Grip Congress; Prospect For Recess Now Uncertain

WASHINGTON, June 3.—"Invasion jitters" gripped congress today with the result that prospects for a recess became as uncertain as the date of the western offensive itself.

A canvass by Democratic and Republican leaders revealed reluctance on the part of many members of congress to a recess from June 20 to September 1 because of the possibility that the invasion may come during this period.

The feeling, it was admitted, is based solely on the possible reaction of voters in an election year to congress taking a vacation while American soldiers are storming the Hitlerian European fortress.

"We couldn't do anything and they'll probably forget we are in session when the invasion comes, but if we are away while the boys are fighting, a lot of people won't like it," explained one senator.

Strong opposition to a long recess also was voiced by some senators who are demanding that important postwar legislation be passed.

This includes the contract termination and plant clearance bill, passed by the senate and pending in the house; a bill for disposal of surplus property, additional unemployment insurance and an office of demobilization to control cut-backs.

Democratic leaders generally are willing to accept a few weeks' recess, although Democratic Senate leader Barkley said he is unconcerned about it.

The Republican senate steering committee planned another session today on the question, after conferences with house Republican leaders.

Three plans are under consideration. Under one a recess would be taken from June 20 to September 1; a second plan called for a recess of 10 days over the Republican national convention, a similar recess over the Democratic convention, and three-day recesses between them.

The plan reported to be most favored is for a recess from about June 20 until July 25. This would span both conventions.

It appeared doubtful, however, that congress could dispose of important "must" legislation before June 20. This includes the price control extension act and important appropriation bills.

the committee desires an agreement, without which, it was said, the population of France would be confused, and clashes among different elements might arise.

This is not a question of extending further recognition to the committee, but merely of coordination plans for civilian control.

But the British and American governments decline to go beyond the statements of Secretary of State Hull and Prime Minister Churchill, which were almost identical in language:

"The committee will exercise leadership in the latter of law and order in the liberated area of France, under supervision of the Allied commander-in-chief."

When Churchill added to this statement that he had invited De Gaulle to London, there were cheers in the house of commons. But it remains to be seen when the French general will actually be provided with an airplane for making the trip.

A further affront to the general was felt in French circles by the fact that the United States has no high-ranking diplomatic representative accredited to the committee in Algiers.

Edwin C. Wilson, who had the personal rank of ambassador, was withdrawn from that post a month ago, "because of the serious illness of his wife." The State department has made no move to appoint a successor.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

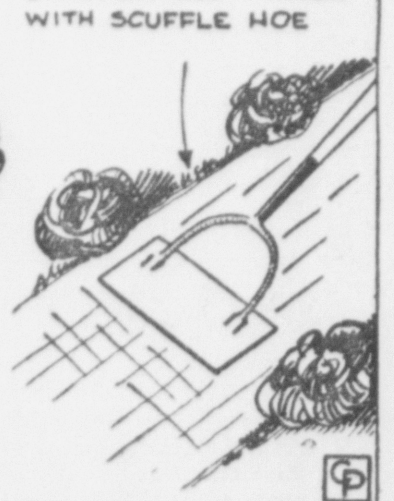

Kinds of Cabbages for Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

EVERYONE likes variety, even in cabbages. Therefore, if the Victory gardener will plant some of the red cabbages as well as the white ones, color can be added to the table. And for a dark green cabbage grow the Savoy types. The Savoy cabbage, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is characterized by crinkly foliage. The Savoy types are attractive in appearance, more tender in quality, and sweeter to the taste than any other cabbages.

Cabbages need to be cultivated with care and an understanding of their root growth. Most of the roots of a cabbage grow within the upper two inches of the soil. The roots also grow almost horizontally. Therefore, only very shallow cultivation should be practiced when the plants have attained considerable size.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, only enough cultivation should be done around cabbages to keep the weeds down (and this preferable with a scuffle hoe) and to maintain a dust mulch.

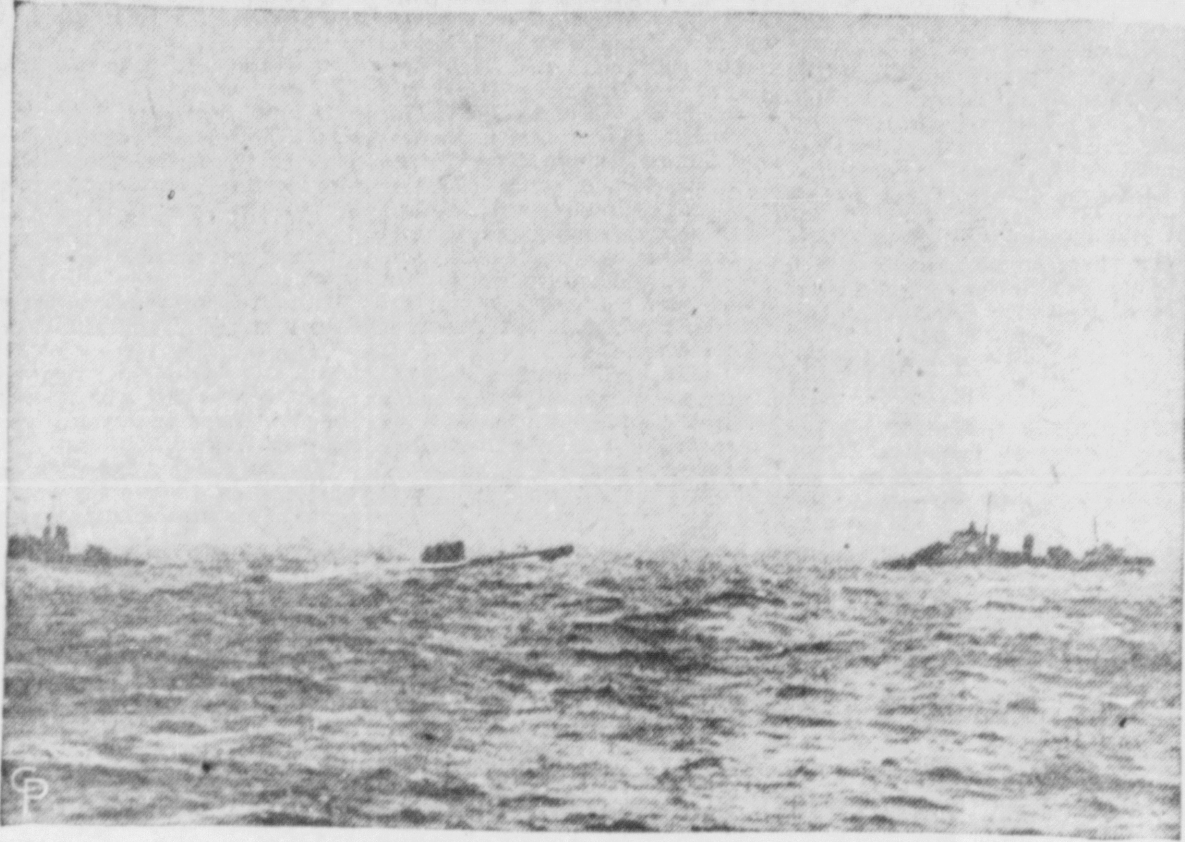

Hand hoeing or hand weeding is usually necessary to keep the weeds down between the plants in the row. This is especially important in the spring when weed growth is most rampant.

26 REASONS WHY NAZIS SHOULD FEAR A B-26

CORNERED LIKE the proverbial rat in a trap, a German submarine is shown, center, forced to the surface in the mid-Atlantic, wallowing helplessly before sinking. The attacking ships are the Canadian destroyer Chilliwack, left, and the destroyer Icarus, at right. When the sub sank, each of the naval craft picked up survivors. A whaler also rescued 13 of the submarine crew and turned them over to the royal frigate St. Catharines. In the photo below, Canadian seamen scramble up the nets of the St. Catharines with one of the rescued sub crewmen. NATIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

SOME gentle-souled people seem to have an idea about war criminals which practical men and women cannot accept. They say they would "punish the sin but not the sinner." Just how they would accomplish it they do not make clear.

Others hesitate to commit themselves to any kind of general penalties for war-makers because they say there are good and unwarlike people in every country, and it is wrong to make them share punishment for evils they were not responsible for.

Neither of those theories or practices gets anywhere in efforts to make a decent world. Punishment for doing evil is a law of nature and also a rule accepted in most religious systems. It seems impossible to escape a practical rule of life, and it is being insisted on more and more in international affairs.

In a perfect world people would not need to be punished. But this world is still imperfect, and requires coercion or penalties to discourage people from mistreating their neighbors. And when people make war as whole nations, they must be punished as whole nations.

THESE BOY-MEN

WITH all due respect for the generals and admirals, and for all men of lower grades and mature age who are engaged in this war, it should be remembered that the toughest fighting is mostly done by boys. And often very young ones. There are reasons for it. A war correspondent, Roeliff Loveland, tells how a "bunch of kids" celebrated Memorial Day. "They plastered the targets in Germany," he says, "and they came home again—all of them. We saw them come, and we saw them land their heavy bombers. As the propellers of the warships began idling, the grass in the airfield swayed in a happy manner, as if it, too, were glad that they had got back safely.

"Then they began to drop out of the belly of each ship, young lads, so young that your heart went out to them, and you wondered how they had the courage to fly through the hell of flak which meets them on every mission. And yet one was reminded that of all our race, these youngsters are the only ones who have what it takes."

They leave school and home, and are suddenly grown up, and doing for the rest of us the hardest, most dangerous and most essential work in the world.

Only a little way behind them, in the strain and daring of their jobs, are the infantrymen who fight mostly without the glamor and thrill of the air forces.

Invasion delay is said to be making the Germans jittery, but let them cheer up—that won't last forever.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

GOP SENATORS

WASHINGTON—Some of the smart boys inside the Republican Party are quietly urging that their strategy during the coming campaign take the line so powerfully laid down by Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, the other day, when he emphasized various deficiencies in FDR's leadership for permanent peace.

Bridges is one of the Senate Republicans who has a spotless record when it comes to cooperation with the President on the war and on his entire foreign policy. Long before Pearl Harbor, when other Republicans were trying to hamstring the Administration, Bridges was out in front fighting for Roosevelt's main war ideas.

For that reason, what he had to say the other day was much more effective. Bridges' main thesis was:

"The American people are not going to rest content with any issue out of this present struggle which results merely in a re-shuffled game of balance of power politics. We are not going to welcome any new fangled sort of imperialism—will never acclaim any outcome of this present cataclysm which merely sows the seeds of another and more horribly devastating war."

WEAK POINT IN FDR'S ARMOR

Senator Bridges then put his finger on what some Republican strategists believe may be the weak point in Roosevelt's war policies, his apparent lack of conviction that this war is not just another war, to be followed by more wars and more power politics.

"Why is it, Mr. President," asked Bridges, "that you no longer talk about a peace that shall endure? Is this why the New York Times of December 18, 1943, quoted you in your press conference as saying:

"The Allied conferences were motivated by the general thought that they did not want another war in the lifetime of the present generation."

"Does this mean," asked Bridges, "that already you have been forced to compromise the ideal of an enduring peace?"

Bridges also quoted the Saturday Evening Post's recent articles by Forrest Davis on the Teheran conference—articles supposed to have been initiated by FDR in advance and which represent the President as believing "that hereafter only countries with an abundance of manpower and resources plus huge industrial plants can engage in the business of war."

Not only GOP strategists, but some of the President's own friends believe this may be a weak point in the President's armor and, even more important, a weak point as far as the nation is concerned.

From the Republican viewpoint, however, it is only a few men who supported the President before Pearl Harbor, such as Senator Bridges, who can effectively criticize. Most other Republicans can't very well throw stones.

Machine Diagnosis Has Limitations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"IF YOU CAN'T tell the cause of a headache, a heartache or a bellyache, without the use of an encephalogram, an electrocardiograph and a fluoroscope you are slipping," Dr. Martin Fischer, of

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Cincinnati, told some of his fellow medical practitioners. Yes, this is a machine age in medicine as anywhere else. And machines are perfectly accurate. They tell the facts within the limitations of their powers. Only many devotees of machines don't recognize their limitations.

The electrocardiograph machine will tell about a person who has a heartache or whose heart is skipping around, just what part of the heart muscle is acting up. But the machine doesn't get around much. When they get through using it they put a canvas hood over it and leave it in the technician's office and go out and close the door. The machine doesn't know what the fellow with the skipping heart and heartache does Saturday night, or what the letters in his pocket say, or just where his son in the armed forces is stationed.

Limitations of Machines

My old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, and I were sitting side by side listening to a very learned lecture by a very scientific person about a very complicated case. "And what would you do next?" asked the speaker, with dramatic emphasis. "Look for the bottle of opium in the bureau drawer," muttered Dr. Gibbs, who has had a good deal of experience with human nature. The machine cannot look in a bureau drawer.

The present situation creates conditions that are naturally reflected in the heart. All the proverbs remind us of that. What we don't remember is that anxiety doesn't result always in just a sad heart. It may spill over into symptoms that resemble real disease. You can call it angina pectoris if you want to and the machine may say angina pectoris, but it is heartache just the same and the cause is not the coronary circulation, but a son or husband or brother out on the firing line at Anzio or New Guinea.

I spoke last week of the palpitations of the heart, the skipped beats and irregularities that are caused by emotion.

There is still another set of symptoms that are mistaken for real organic heart disease and those have to do with shortness of breath and difficult breathing. Everybody knows that difficult or labored breathing, dyspnea, as the doctors call it, is a sign of heart disease. Fundamentally it is due to the need of the tissue cells for oxygen.

Shortness of Breath
The athlete after a race is breathing in a labored fashion because the effort of the race has caused his muscles to use up an extra amount of oxygen and to accumulate a lot of carbon dioxide. His heart being strong he is soon adjusted to a state of compensation. The weak heart muscle of the heart patient causes the same condition as exertion does in the case of the athlete, so he is short of breath at rest.

A great many people, however, in these emotional times find themselves with sighing respiration and since this imitates the labored breathing of heart disease they conclude they are in that class. This has long been known as functional, or nervous, dyspnea. It can easily be distinguished by any doctor, if he takes the trouble to examine the heart of such a person. In fact it can be distinguished by the character of the breathing. The commonest sensation is that the breath doesn't get to the bottom of the lungs. The breathing is not exactly labored—there is a sighing and a panting type. It isn't present all the time, but comes in spells. You can put it down not to heart disease but to the difficult conditions of our time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. S.:—Please tell me of a remedy for an oily scalp.
Answer: Use the following as a shampoo: oil of eucalyptus—2 parts, oil of pine needles—2 parts, glycerin—30 parts, soft soap—50 parts, alcohol—60 parts, water enough to make 1000 parts.

F. E. C.:—Please advise how to treat gout with colchicine. Is wine of colchicine the same as colchicine?

Answer: Take a pill one-one-hundredth grain of colchicine every two hours during an acute attack until you have cramps and pass a large, watery stool. Then stop. Colchicine is the active principle of colchicum.

speck (D.) of Georgia.

It seems that after President Roosevelt ordered the seizure, the administration was set to have the plant turned over to War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson.

The stage was set for Nelson to take over the sprawling mail order house by the Chicago river, using whatever means necessary to commandeer it and run it until the dispute between management and union was settled.

Then, at the last minute, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones was designated to take over instead.

The reason was that administration officials suddenly remembered that Nelson was chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company before he went to work directing production to win the war. In that role he was—by position, at least—the Sewell Avery of Ward's greatest rival in the mail order business, a rival fighting for trade from all sections of the United States.

Certain officials, the report concludes, are considerably relieved they remembered in time to prevent that Nelson order.

THE NATIONAL PARTY CONVENTIONS in Chicago are drawing ever closer with no word from the executive mansions in Washington and Albany, but politicians are confident it will be Franklin D. Roosevelt vs. Governor Thomas E. Dewey in the November elections.

F. D. R. has well over the majority of Democratic votes needed to nominate him and Dewey, counting uninstructed delegates that undoubtedly will vote for him, has the GOP nomination in the bag.

Roosevelt is expected to maintain his tight-lipped silence right up to the convention, but it is believed he will accept a draft nomination. Dewey has said he is not a candidate, but his supporters predict he, too, will accept.

The Republican convention starts June 26 and the Democrats meet July 19.

ANY PROSPECTS the administration may have had for passage of national service legislation have gone aglimmering as result of the new draft program, easing up deferrals for older men.

Members of Congress say there might have been a chance for such legislation last year, but there isn't any now. Proposals to force 4-F's and other workers into war jobs also face the same fate.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1945 by LITTLE, BROWN & CO., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

That night they were all sitting on the Wright porch watching the wind blow the leaves across the lawn. John F. and Jim were debating the presidential campaign with some heat. Ellery sat by himself in a corner, smoking.

"John, you know I don't like these political arguments!" said Hermie. "Goodness, you men get so hot under the collar—"

Jim grinned. "All right, Mother! Then he said casually: 'Oh, by the way, darling, I got a letter from my sister Rosemary this morning. Forgive me, I forgot to tell you.'"

"Yes?" Nora's tone was bright. "How nice. What does she write, dear?"

Pat drifted toward Ellery and sat down at his feet. "The usual stuff. She does say she'd like to meet you—all of you."

"Well, I should think so!" declared Hermie. "I'm very anxious to meet your sister, Jim. Is she coming for a visit?"

"Well... I was thinking of asking her, but—"

"Now, Jim," said Nora. "You know I've asked you dozens of times to invite Rosemary to Wrightsville."

"Then it's all right with you, Nor?" asked Jim.

"All right!" Nora laughed. "What's the matter with you? Give me her address and I'll drop her a note tonight."

"Don't bother, darling. I'll write her myself."

When they were alone, a half hour later, Pat said to Ellery: "Nora was scared."

"Yes. It's a poser." Ellery circled his knees with his arms. "Of course, the letter that stirred Jim up this morning was the same letter he just said he got from his sister."

"Ellery, Jim's holding something back."

"No question about it." "If sister Rosemary just wrote about wanting to come for a visit, or anything as trivial as that... why did Jim burn her letter?"

Mr. Queen kept silent for a long time. Finally he mumbled: "Go to bed, Patty. I want to think."

On the morning of November 8, Jim Haight's sister, Rosemary, came to Wrightsville. Ellery Queen saw her get off the train at the Wrightsville station, and trip over to Jim and kiss him, and turn to Nora with a spruce cheek.

Mr. Queen also saw the two women laugh and chatter as Jim and the porter picked up the visitor's smart luggage and made for Jim's car.

And Ellery's weather eye clouded over. That night, at Nora's, he had an opportunity to test his first barometric impression.

Soon he decided that Rosemary Haight was no bucolic maiden on an exciting journey; that she was pure metropolis. Also, she was menacingly attractive. Hermie, Pat, and Nora disliked her instantly; Ellery could tell that from the extreme politeness with which they treated her.

As for John F., he was charmed and spryly gallant. Hermie reproached him in the silent language of the eye...

Ellery spent a troubled night trying to put Miss Rosemary Haight together in the larger puzzle, and not succeeding.

Jim was busy at the bank these days and left the entertaining of his sister to Nora. Duo fully Nora drove Rosemary about the country, side, showing her the "sights." It was a little difficult for Nora to sustain the charming-hostess illusion, since Rosemary had a supercilious attitude towards many things.

Then there was the gantlet of the town's ladies to run... teas for the guest, an ambitious mah-jongg party, a wiener roast on the lawn one moonlit night, a church social...

The ladies were cold. Emmeline DuPre said Rosemary Haight had a streak of "commerce," whatever that was; Clarice Martin thought her clothes too "you-know," and Mrs. Mackenzie at the Country Club said she was a—well, just look at those silly men drooling at her!

The Wright women found themselves constrained to defend her, which was hard, considering that secretly they agreed to the truth of all the charges.

"I wish she'd leave," said Pat to Ellery a few days after Rosemary's arrival. "Isn't that a horrid thing to say? But I do. And now she's sent for her trunk!"

"But I thought she didn't like it here."

"That's what I can't understand, either. Nora says it was supposed to be a 'flying' visit, but Rosemary acts as if she means to dig in for the winter. And Nora can't very well discourage her."

"What's Jim say?" "Nothing to Nora, but—" Pat lowered her voice and looked around—

"Apparently he's said something to Rosemary, because I happened in this morning and there was Nora trapped in the serving pantry while Jim and Rosemary, who evidently thought Nora was upstairs, were having an argument in the dining room."

"What was the argument about?" asked Ellery.

"I came in at the tail end and didn't hear anything important, but Nora says it was... well, frightening. Nora wouldn't tell me what she'd heard, but she was terribly upset—she looked the way she did when she read those letters that tumbled out of the toxicology book."

Rosemary Haight's trunk arrived the next day. Steve Polaris, who ran the local express agency, delivered the trunk himself—an overgrown affair that looked as if it might be packed with imported evening gowns. Steve lugged it up Nora's walk on his broad back. Mr. Queen and Pat who were watching from the Wright porch, saw him carry it into Nora's house and come out a few minutes later accompanied by Rosemary, who was wearing a candid red, white, and blue negligee.

Ellery and Pat saw Rosemary sign Steve's receipt book and go back into the house. As Steve slouched down the walk grinning, Ellery said suddenly, "Pat, do you know this truckman well?"

"Steve? That's the only way you can know him."

Steve tossed his receipt book on the driver's seat of his truck and began to climb in.

"Then distract him. Right now! Get him out of sight of that truck for two minutes!"

Pat instantly called: "Oh, Steve—e-e-e!" and tripped down the porch steps. Ellery followed in a saunter. No one was in sight anywhere on the Hill.

Pat was slipping her arm through Steve's, saying something about her piano, and there wasn't a man she knew strong enough to move it from where it was to where she wanted it, and of course when she saw Steve...

Steve went with Pat into the Wright house, visibly pleased. Ellery was at the truck in two bounds. He snatched the receipt book from the front seat. Then he took a piece of charred paper from his wallet and began riffling the pages of the book...

When Pat reappeared with Steve, Mr. Queen was at Hermione's zinnia bed surveying the blossoms with the sadness of a poet. Steve gave him a scornful look and passed on.

"I was wrong," mumbled Ellery.

"About what?" "About Rosemary. My hunch was: This woman Rosemary doesn't seem cut from the same cloth as Jim Haight. They don't seem like brother and sister at all—"

"Ellery!"

"Oh, it was possible. But... she is his sister."

"And you proved that through Steve's truck? Wonderful!"

"Through his receipt book, in which this woman just signed her name. I have the real Rosemary Haight's signature, you'll recall, my dear Watson."

"On that charred flap of envelope we found in Jim's study—the remains of his sister's letter that he'd burned!"

"Precisely, my dear Watson. And the signature 'Rosemary Haight' on the flap of the letter and the 'Rosemary Haight' in Steve's receipt book are the work of the same hand."

"Leaving us," remarked Pat dryly, "exactly where we were."

"No," said Mr. Queen with a faint smile. "Before we only believed this woman was Jim's sister. Now we know it."

The longer Rosemary Haight stayed at Nora's, the more inexpressible the woman became. Jim was busy at the bank; sometimes he did not even come home to dinner. Yet Rosemary did not seem to mind her brother's neglect half so much as her sister-in-law's attentions. Towards Pat and Hermione, Rosemary was less obvious. She rattled on about her "travels"—Panama, Rio, Honolulu, Bali, Banff, surf riding, skiing, mountain climbing, and "exciting" men—much talk about "exciting" men—until the ladies of the Wright family began to look harried and grim...

Yet Rosemary stayed on. Why? Mr. Queen was pondering this poser as he sat one morning in the window seat of his workroom. Rosemary Haight had just come out of her brother's house, a cigaret at an acute angle to her red lips, clad in jodhpurs, red Russian boots and a form-fitting sweater. She stood on the porch for a moment, slapping a crop against her boots with impatience. Then she strode off into the woods behind the Wright grounds.

Later, Pat took Ellery driving; and he told her about seeing the Haight woman enter the woods in a riding habit.

Pat turned into the broad concrete of Route 16, driving slowly. "Bored," she said. "Bored blue. She got Jake Bushmiller the blacksmith to dig her up a saddle horse—yes, yesterday was her first day out, and Carmel Pettigrew saw her tearing along the dirt road toward Twin Hill like—'I quote—one of the Valkyries.' Carmel thinks Rosemary's just too-too."

"And you?" queried Mr. Queen. "That panther laziness of hers is an—underneath, she's the restlessness type, and hard as task. Or don't you think so?" Pat glanced at him sideways.

"She's attractive," said Ellery evasively.

Pat drove in silence for some time. Then she said: "What do you make of the whole thing, Ellery: Jim's conduct, Rosemary, the three letters, the visit, Rosemary's staying on when she hates it—Ellery—look!"

One-Minute Test

1. What is the difference between "elusive" and "illusive"?
2. In what book does "Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum" appear?
3. What is a negative number?

Words of Wisdom

Honesty is one part of eloquence. We persuade others by being in earnest ourselves.—Hazlitt.

Today's Horoscope

The easiest path is the one you pursue, if today is your birthday. You are independent, have originality and a fair amount of ambition, but your love of ease and comfort deters you from the greater success of which you are capable. You are moody and often depressed. You love deeply and faithfully. Do not spoil your really good prospects by impetuosity and resentment of others' success. Be guarded in the written and spoken word, and avoid extravagance. The child born on this date will enjoy more than average good fortune, but a hot temper should be early controlled, and high aspirations encouraged.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are invited to an informal gathering and are not sure if you will be able to attend, tell your would-be hostess so, giving her the reason for your partial refusal. Her answer should be, "Come if you can."

Sunday Horoscope

If you are celebrating a birthday today you are exceedingly optimistic, even in the face of disaster. You are bright and witty, good-natured, thorough in your work, and do it with ease and enthusiasm. You have many friends, will make a happy marriage, and command a strong and devoted love. In the next 12 months do not attempt the impossible. Concentrate on manageable success. The more your efforts will be well rewarded. Act upon your own true intuitions. The child born on this date will require a sound and careful upbringing to counteract the strong self-centered characteristics likely to be manifested. Trouble through documents is foreseen.

Pickaway Garden Club Holds Annual Dinner

Group Votes Cash For Lockbourne Base Fund

Annual banquet of the Pickaway County Garden club Friday at the Pickaway Arms was attended by 50 members and visitors. Tables centered with large bowls of lovely June roses had as favors at each cover, miniature vases filled with rose buds.

Officers elected for the coming year include Mrs. E. E. Porter, who will serve as president; Mrs. Emmett W. Barnhart, vice president; Mrs. F. K. Blair, secretary; Mrs. George Roth, treasurer; Miss Mary Heffner, librarian; and Mrs. Orion King, historian. The slate was elected unanimously after the names were read by Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, chairman of the nominating committee. Mrs. Clarence McAbee, club president, was in the chair for the business hour.

The club voted a donation of $10 to the Camp and Hospital council of Pickaway county for use at the Lockbourne Army Air Base. A committee was appointed to cooperate in landscaping a part of the grounds at the base. This committee is comprised of Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Mrs. Blair and Mrs. E. S. Shane.

Miss Rosemary Schreiner sang "The Sweet of the Year," by Mary Turner Salter, "The Answer," by Robert Terry, and as an encore, "Clorinda," by Orlando Morgan. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Mrs. T. E. Wilson, chairman, Mrs. Barnhart, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Clarence Wolf, Mrs. Will Mack and Harry Swearingen were responsible for the arrangements for the successful social affair.

Zelda Bible Class

Zelda Bible class of the Methodist church enjoyed a delightful picnic supper Friday at the home of Mrs. Guy Heffner, Salt Creek township. Thirty-four members and guests, including husbands of members, were present.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted in Mrs. Lewis Sharpe being named president; Mrs. W. L. Sprouse, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Hilyard, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Reba Lee, assistant.

At the close of the informal social evening the class recessed until September.

Women's Bible Class

Eight members of the Women's Bible class of the Presbyterian church met Friday at the home of Mrs. George Hammell, North Court street. Mrs. Charles Dresbach conducted the short business hour and the devotional service.

Mrs. Eva Dresbach arranged the short program of readings by class members. Refreshments concluded the affair.

Group G Meets

Group G of the Women's association of the Presbyterian church met Friday in the social room with Mrs. Robert Musser, chairman, in charge. Mrs. E. S. Shane is serving as co-chairman of the group; Mrs. Arthur Steele, secretary, and Mrs. Joe Adkins, treasurer. Mrs. Paul Gearhart has been named as program chairman.

During the afternoon, plans for the group were outlined, the regular meetings to be held the third Friday of each month at 2:30 p. m. It was decided also to have monthly dues of 50 cents for each member and it was requested that dues for the period between April through September be paid at the first Fall meeting.

The September session will be at the home of Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, Wayne township. The Summer meetings will be omitted.

Dorcas Pathfinder Class

School days, featuring classes in reading, writing and arithmetic, marked the program of the Dorcas Pathfinder class of the Calvary Evangelical church Friday when the members met at the home of Mrs. Mark DeLong, East Mound street. Each member was dressed as a child, "pig-tails," large gay bows of ribbon and school frocks of long ago marking the outfits. Each carried school books, and lessons for the evening were read from the second, third and

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis List, Mary Krimmel and Norma Hulse; piano solo, Mrs. Thompson; vocal solo, Joyce Troutman. The program was concluded with group singing of "God Bless America."

The next session will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barthelmas, Wayne township.

Past Chief's Club

Mrs. Frank Davis of near Yellowwood will be hostess at the regular meeting of the Past Chief's club, entertaining the group at 8 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home, South Court street.

Magic Sewing Club

Magic Sewing club met Friday at the home of Mrs. John A. Grubb, South Pickaway street, with Mrs. D. A. Arledge of the Circleville community present in addition to the club group.

Sewing and social visiting were enjoyed at the close of the brief business hour.

Mrs. Grubb conducted two interesting contests, Mrs. Gladden Troutman and Mrs. Roger Lozier winning the prizes.

A salad course was served at a table prettily decorated with a large bowl of Paul Scarlet roses.

Mrs. Russell Skaggs invited the club members to meet at her home on East Union street at its next meeting, June 16.

Real Folks' Club

Real Folks' club enjoyed its regular session at the home of Mrs. Fred Duncan, North Scioto street, with 12 present. An evening of games was concluded with delightful refreshments.

The next session will be at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Ruff, East Mound street.

Personals

Miss Mary Virginia Crites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meinhardt M. Crites, of West Franklin street, has returned home from Durham, N. C., where she had gone to see if she might enter Duke university for the coming year. Miss Crites is a member of the senior class of Circleville high school and will be graduated at commencement exercises Tuesday.

Miss Emily Gunning of New York City visited overnight Friday with her mother, Mrs. Helen F. Gunning, of East Main street. Miss Gunning was enroute with friends to California where she plans to spend the Summer with her brother, Bill Gunning, at his home in West Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ray Heffner and daughters of near Ashville were Friday shopping visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Maynard Marion of Ashville visited relatives in Circleville Friday.

SUNDAY'S horoscope indicates a rather complicated state of affairs, with promise of much joy and pleasure, success and achievement, but the auspicious conditions may be nullified by various forms of extravagance, self-indulgence, wild and dubious conduct. There may be temptations in connection with writings, documents or agreements, which may be distorted or manipulated toward unworthy ends. Personal extra-

Paul in Ephesus

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 4 is Acts 19:1-20:1; Ephesians, the Golden Text being Ephesians 2:10, "We are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared that we should walk in them.")

IN THIS lesson Paul came to Ephesus, one of the richest and most noted cities of Asia Minor. At this period it was under the influence of Greek civilization, and the Greeks worshiped Diana, and the temple of Diana, one of the wonders of the ancient world, was at Ephesus.

This temple of Diana possessed valuable lands, it controlled the fisheries, and its priests controlled the money of the city. People brought their money to the temple for safe keeping, and it became as important to the ancient world as the Bank of England to the modern one.

At Ephesus Paul met "certain disciples," and asked them, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost?" They answered that they did not even know whether there was an Holy Ghost. They had been baptized by John the Baptist or his followers. Paul, therefore baptized them in the name of Jesus Christ, and they received the Holy Ghost.

Teaches in the Synagogue

Paul went, as was his custom, into the synagogue, where both Jews and Greeks came to hear him. Many were persuaded and believed, but some spoke evil of the way he taught, and he left and separated the disciples, then went to the school of one Tyrannus, who evidently was a prominent person. There Paul continued his preaching for two years.

Special miracles were wrought by Paul at this time. Handkerchiefs or aprons taken from him were taken to the sick and those with evil spirits, and the diseases left the sick and the evil spirits those afflicted with them.

Hearing this, some bad men, especially seven sons of Sceva, a Jew and chief priest, tried to drive out evil spirits, calling over them the name of the Lord Jesus and saying, "We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth." The evil spirit inhabiting one man answered these men, "Jesus I know, and Paul, but who are ye?" And the man with the spirit leaped upon these impostors and wounded them, so that they ran away naked.

This became known to Jews and Greeks alike, and fear fell upon all who had been trying to imitate Paul. Many that believed came and confessed their evil deeds.

Now in Ephesus was a silver-smith named Demetrius, who made shrines for Diana, growing rich thereby. He called together all men of this craft and pointed out to them that Paul taught that there were no gods made with hands. If this continued, they would be deprived of their livelihood, said he, and moreover, the temple of Diana would be despised.

So much did Demetrius arouse these people that the whole city was in confusion, and having caught two of Paul's companions, Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians, they rushed them into the theater. Paul could not get in and the disciples also held him back, certain chiefs who were his friends asking him not to venture into the theater.

Shout "Great Is Diana"

Alexander tried to make a defense, but when they knew he was a Jew they shouted him down, and for about two hours they cried out, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The town clerk, however, representative of Roman law, sent all these people about their business. If Demetrius and his men had a real grievance, said he, there were courts in which it could be tried; in other words, he would not allow mob law to rule, and he also reminded them that the city might have to answer for the uproar, and he dismissed them all.

When it was all over, Paul embraced his disciples and departed to go into Macedonia. All this transpired about 53 or 54 A. D. The letter to the Ephesians, which constitutes the last part of our lesson, was written when he was a prisoner in Rome, about 10 years later.

In our brief space it is difficult to know what to quote from the wonderful epistle written by Paul to his friends in Ephesus. The whole book should be read and pondered. Let us, therefore, just quote one small part here:

"I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, long suffering, forbearing one another in love; Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all."

BACCALAUREATE TRINITY SUNDAY SERMON TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY AT ST. JOSEPH'S

"Restorers Or Creators?" is the subject chosen by the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy for his baccalaureate sermon Sunday at 8 p. m. in the Presbyterian church. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke will play Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" as the Processional, and "Triumphal March" by Verdi for the Recessional. The choir, with Mrs. Clark Will directing, will sing Jacques Wolfe's "British Children's Prayer."

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, the service starting at 10:30. Miss Clarke will begin the worship hour with two organ compositions: "Chorale on a Hymn Tune" by Noble and "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach. Miss Clarke will also play "June" from "The Seasons" by Tschalkowsky and "Recessional" by Curran. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Will, will sing the "British Children's Prayer" by Jacques Wolfe. Rev. Carl L. Kennedy will give the Meditation, the subject being "Only A Towel," the text being drawn from John 13:4. "He took a towel."

As Sunday is the day set aside in June to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association, four young men of the congregation will assist the minister in the worship service. They are the following: George D. McDowell, Jr., Robert Steele, Charles Will, and Robert Porter.

During the service Mrs. Ned Bell will be received into the membership of the church.

BIBLE SCHOOL REGISTRATION SET FOR MONDAY

Plans have been completed for the opening of the nineteenth annual Vacation Bible School of Trinity Lutheran church.

Registration time is set for Monday, June 5, at 2 p. m. at the parish house. The school will be in session three weeks, Monday through Friday, from 9 until 11:35 a. m. each day. All children between the ages of five and 18 years desiring to attend are welcome.

The school is sponsored by the Lutheran Brotherhood with no expense to the pupils.

It is truly what the name implies, "A Vacation School." Interesting and attractive courses in Bible Story, hand work, wood work, Bible knowledge, dramatics, Bible lantern picture slides, novelty and Bible geography are being offered along with patriotic flag drills and supervised play. Special plans have been made on work for the older pupils.

The departmental plan will be followed, employing six teachers. Special outings have been planned, one for each week. The final one will be the school picnic at Logan Elm Park Friday, June 23, at 9:30 a. m.

Closing events will include public presentation of Bible plays on the stage at the parish house Thursday, June 22, at 8 p. m. Flag drills will be presented also at this time by pupils of the primary department.

The school will have a program in the church Sunday, June 25, at 10:15 a. m.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When you buy yarn to make hand-knit articles, get a little extra wool so that you will have some left over, even if you have to buy an extra ball. The articles can then be mended by re-knitting in patches when they begin to wear.

If sheer fabrics slip while you are cutting them, pin the fabric to lightweight paper before you put the pattern down for cutting. Don't forget to give the wrapping paper to the salvage drive when you are finished with it.

When you take a cake from the oven, place it on a rack, in the tin, for about five minutes. The sides of the cake should then be loosened from the tin and the cake turned out on the rack to finish cooling.

Brighten Up! Sherwin-Williams Paint, Enameloid, Semi-Lustre, Floor Enamel, Porch and Deck Paint, Varnishes, etc. Also Turpentine, Waxes, Polishes, Cleaners and Water Softener.

ASHVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey have received word that their son, Howard, has been promoted to the rank of Captain. Capt. Mahaffey is a surgeon at the Station hospital at Trux Field, Madison, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hedges expect their son, Sgt. Busee Hedges home over the week end.

Twenty-two members of the Ashville W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church were present for a luncheon held at the church Friday. The afternoon was spent in marking prices on the many articles brought in for the rummage sale to be held in Columbus at an early date. The ladies wish to thank everyone who donated something for the sale.

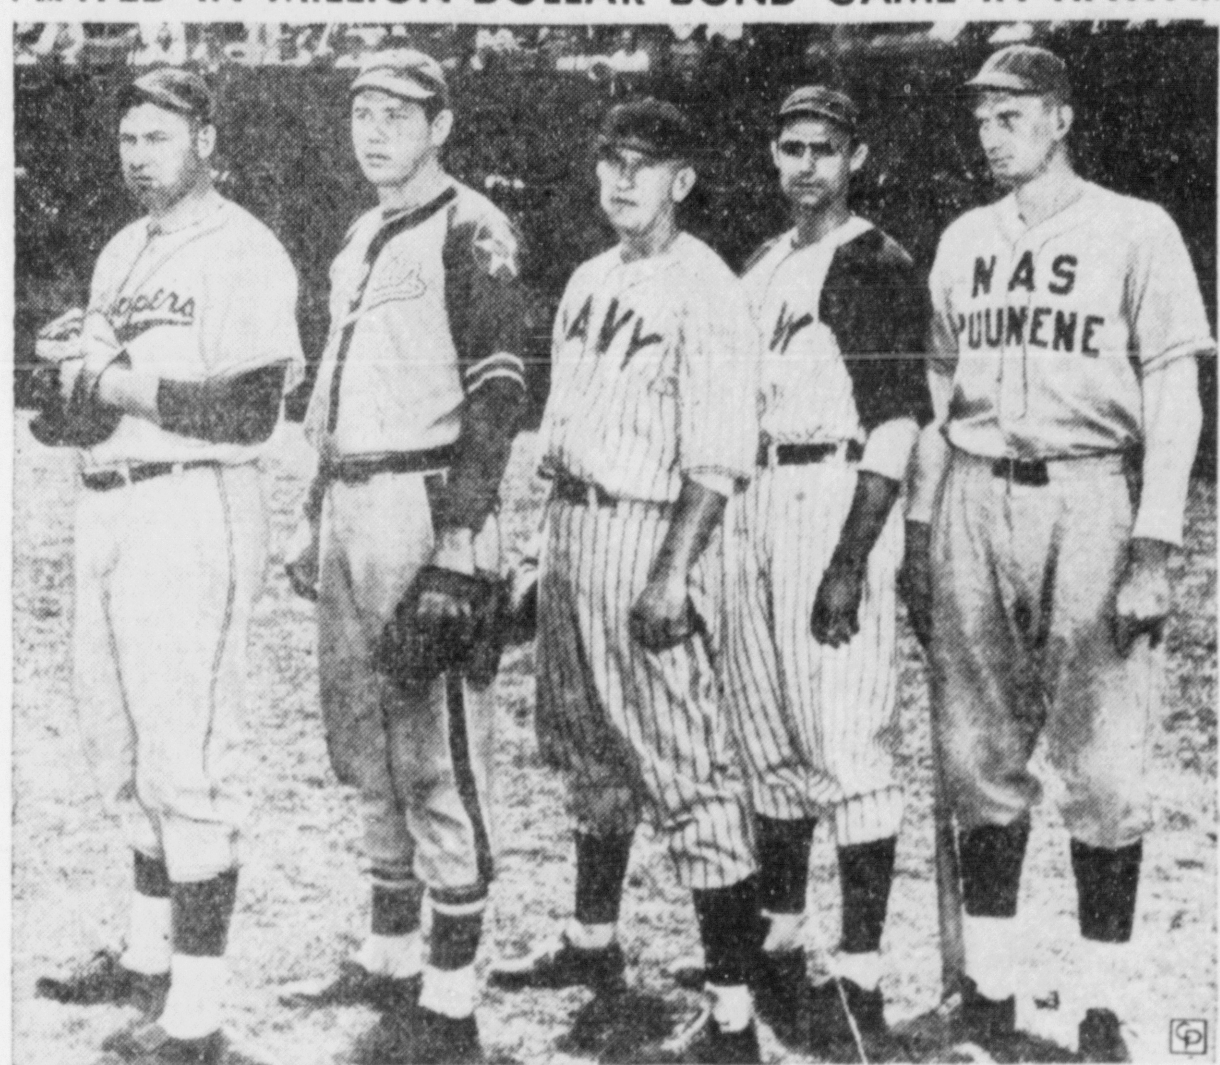

Ashville will soon be represented by a Girl Scout troop which will meet in the Ashville Community Club Room under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Cromley. It is planned to sponsor a Junior Girl Scout group which will be led by Mrs. H. S. Wilson. A large number of girls have expressed a desire to join the troops, and the Community Club is acting as a sponsor. This movement will help fill one of the community's greatest needs; some useful and wholesome activity to occupy a part of the leisure time of our young people.

Dick Messick, and George McDowell, Jr., have joined the Will W. Fischer and Son organization and are working on the Columbus wholesale market. Frederick Puckett begins work Monday at the State Office Building where he was employed last Summer.

Two head of cattle have been killed by lightning on the Howard Hedges' farm this Spring. One was a pure-bred cow owned by Busee Hedges, who is now in the U. S. Army.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the dehydrator plant being constructed on the Jackson Pike just north of the South Bloomfield road. The cement work has been completed and the installment of machinery is being started. It is hoped to have the plant in operation in the near future.

PLAYED IN MILLION-DOLLAR BOND GAME IN HAWAII

FIVE EX-BIG LEAGUE STARS, now in the Navy, participated in an all-star baseball game in Honolulu at which more than $1,000,000 in war bonds were pledged. A crowd of 20,000 witnessed the game, won by the Navy, 4 to 2, over an Hawaiian team. The ex-big leaguers above, are left to right, Hugh Casey of the Dodgers, Tom Ferrick of the Indians, Vern Olsen of the Cubs, Walter Masterson of the Senators and Jack Hallett of the Pirates. All were pitchers in the big leagues.

PENSIVE STRONG FAVORITE FOR BELMONT STAKES

NEW YORK, June 3 — Pensive was an odds-on favorite to take this afternoon's 76th running of the Belmont Stakes and thus set into place the third and final jewel in turfdom's triple crown. The game, stretch-running son of England's famed Hyperion was expected to go to the post at odds of about 7 to 10 for his mile and a half challenge with seven other three-year-olds at Belmont park.

Winner of the mile and a quarter Kentucky Derby and the mile and three sixteenths Preakness with stout-hearted dashes through the stretch, the brightest star in the Calumet colors figured to like the longer Belmont route even better than the shorter tests. He is bred for distance.

His chief contention was expected to come from Platter and Who Goes There, running as the George D. Widener entry and pointed for a one-two sprint-and-stretch punch for the $50,000 added purse.

Who Goes There, winner of the Withers mile, has tremendous early speed to wear down the pack and set the stage for a stretch duel between Platter and Pensive, according to the way the race is being run in advance on paper.

JIM TOBIN GETS SWEET REVENGE AGAINST REDS

BOSTON, Mass., June 3 — Jim Tobin, who was the victim of no-hit, no-run pitching stint by Cincinnati's Clyde Shoun in his last start against the Redlegs, today had sweet revenge.

The big right-hander shut out the Reds with three hits as the Boston Braves scored a 4-0 victory in the first of a four-game series. It was Tobin's third shut-out of the season.

Ed Heusser pitched four-hit ball for the Reds, but five walks and shaky fielding cost the former Pacific Coast league ace a bitter defeat.

Manager Bill McKechnie nominated Buckey Walters to take the mound for the Reds in today's game. Nate Andrews was scheduled to hurl for the Braves.

COMEBACK OF HAMMERIN' HENRY STRIKES SNAG

CHICAGO, June 3 — The comeback campaign of Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, one-time triple title holder, bogged down in the Chicago stadium ring last night when Henry lost a ten round decision to Willie Joyce, Gary, Ind., lightweight.

The judges and referee were unanimous in their verdict, and while the result may have setback the famed Negro lightweight's campaign, it did not end it. Armstrong left today for New York where he is to take on Al Davis at the Garden in a bout that figures to do $100,000.

Armstrong forced the fight all the way, but the Gary colored boy's counter blows were too much for him. Henry was slow, and Willie, backing away hit the former champion at will.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

LEARN BRIDGE FAST

12--Raising a Suit Bid

IN CONTRACT bridge, it is your desire to bid a game if a game can be made by your side, as there is a big bonus of points for bidding and making a game which you cannot score by merely taking the tricks. It must be both bid and made to give you that bonus. The same applies to bidding a slam, to get the big premiums for bidding and making a Little Slam of 12 tricks or a Grand Slam of all 13 tricks.

There is only one exception to the desirability of bidding a game or slam, if your side can make it. That comes when an opponent has bid so high that you reckon you can score more points by beating his contract, in which case you will generally wish to double him.

Ordinarily, if your partner has made a suit bid, one of the things you consider is the question of whether or not you should raise his bid and, if so, how high. To do this, your first requirement is to be sure that his suit will be safe for your side to use as a trump suit. That means chiefly that your side should have at least eight cards of the suit. If it has only seven, the opponents have six, which usually will not be evenly divided between the opponents. One will have four and the other two more often than they will have three apiece. If that is the case, the player with four may make a lot of trouble for the declarer. But, if your side has eight, it will usually prove a safe trump suit.

Since your partner's suit bid has guaranteed at least four trumps, a total of four in your hand will render the suit pretty safe. You may then consider raising him, and want to know how good your hand will be in support of his. Here is an accurate way to value your "supporting tricks".

- Trumps--
- (a) One for having 4 trumps, 1 each for any additional ones.
 - (b) One each for ace, king or queen.
 - (c) For chance to use them separately, in ruffing side suits, 2 1/2 if you are blank in some suit,

1 1/2 for a singleton, 1/2 for a doubleton.

(Add your trump values under these three, never counting more than a total one less than your total number of trumps.)

Side Suits--

- (a) High cards. Count 1 1/2 for each ace, 1 for each king, 1/2 for each queen.
- (b) Low cards. Count same as in original bid hand, 1/2 each for first two cards beyond the top three, 1 each for additional ones.

Totalling these, under the headings of supporting tricks in trumps and side suits, will give you the gross number of tricks your hand should be worth to your partner. By adding that amount to 4 1/2--the minimum which you should count him as having--you will reach a grand total pretty close to the exact number he probably will be able to make in the play.

Since his bid of 1-Spade guaranteed probable ability to take a minimum of 4 1/2 tricks--with a maximum as high as about 7 1/2--if your hand counts up to be good for at least 2 1/2 and contains four trumps, you can afford to give him a raise to two, rather than pass, so that if he has a maximum, the side won't miss a game. There are times, of course, when it is better to make a bid different from a raise, but we will get to that later. For the present, we are concerned with your ability to raise.

In considering a raise to more than two, it will pay you to treat his hand as a minimum, with only 4 1/2 playing tricks. Hence, you should not jump the bid to higher than two unless you have at least 5 1/2 "supporting tricks," so that the total in sight is at least about ten. If you raise him to two and he then raises to three, he has indicated more than a minimum, at least about six playing tricks, so you will need about four "supporting tricks" to go to four. You ordinarily should have four supporting tricks also to bid two in his suit if the intervening opponent has overcalled his bid--for reasons we will get to later.

Monday: High Suit Openings.

POST WAR PLANS

A reporter attending the "Hooky Hall" program on a recent Saturday asked 6-year-old Bobby Hookey, emcee and singing star of the show, whether he was "romantically inclined" towards pint-sized songstress Termite Daniels, a regular guest on his program. Bobby took the question very seriously. "Why don't we wait until the war is over," said the mite, "and then you ask me that?"

Ed East is the untitled king of the ad-lib, with a well-nigh incredible record of 75 minutes daily, five days a week. In addition to "Ladies Be Seated," Ed also runs "Breakfast in Bedlam." On both programs, Ed not only does running-fire commentary, but he also engages in repartee with guests--which is an even tougher assignment.

Pickaway County's Fifth War Loan Quota Set At $1,476,000

BOND SALESMEN TO ORGANIZE AT PARLEY MONDAY

Clark Will, Chairman For Campaign, Hopeful Of Local Success

PUBLIC RESPONSE URGED

Organization Plans Contact With All Individuals And All Homes

Quota for Pickaway county in the Fifth War Loan campaign, starting June 12 will be $1,476,000. The quota is $232,000 more than the Fourth War Loan quota.

Clark Will, general chairman of the drive, announced a meeting of leaders will be held Monday evening for organization. Zone chairmen will be appointed, and the city will probably be divided into four sections with a chairman in charge of each.

In the last campaign Pickaway county exceeded its individual quota by a sizeable margin and the chairman feels confident that it will be able to do as well if not better in this drive.

The individual's quota in the Fifth War Loan drive is $326,000 which is larger than the previous quota, but not much in excess of the amount that was reached.

The corporation and institutional quota for the Fifth War Loan drive also is larger than the quota for the previous drive.

The national quota for the campaign is $16,000,000,000 with a non-banking quota of $10,000,000,000. Ohio's share of this total as set by the treasury department at Washington is $797,000,000, an increase of 18.6 percent over the Fourth War Loan.

Mr. Will pointed out that all the chairmen are persons who are otherwise engaged and whose time is limited in this work and asks the cooperation of all citizens in the county to put this Fifth War Loan drive over.

"Every man and woman in the county," Mr. Will said, "should take the importance of his or her individual participation in the financing of the war and that our financing should keep step with our efforts on the battlefield. To do this and to attain our goal will require the concerted effort of every citizen of the county."

Following the reorganization meeting Monday night a series of sectional meetings will be held and a concerted effort made by the chairmen to have every house in the county visited.

KROGER TO BUY HEAVILY DURING WAR LOAN DRIVE

The Kroger Grocery & Baking Company will subscribe in the Fifth War Loan $3,000,000 in War Bonds for allocation on the basis of $1,000 a store in states where it operates. Further bond purchases will also be made in Cincinnati where general offices of the company are located.

Kroger's action in buying bonds in this campaign is in keeping with company policy to participate in activities in every community where the company's stores are located. Red Cross contributions were distributed among 18 states on a basis of size of operations in each one, and in the National War Fund drives likewise the company pursues the same policy of local contributions."

Richard Harman Wins DFC for Heroic Role In Raids Against Huns

Extraordinary achievement in numerous combat missions over Germany and enemy-occupied Europe have brought the Distinguished Flying Cross to Technical Sergeant Richard Harman, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Harman of Circleville.

Sergeant Harman is top turret gunner on the Eighth Air Force Flying Fortress "Troublemaker." According to official information given by the Eighth AAF, Sgt. Harman has fought through some of the stiffest fighter opposition and thickest flak the Nazis could send up to try to stop the bomber formations. Among some of the targets he has visited are Berlin, Brunswick, Regensburg, Stettin and Kiel.

Commenting on some of his experiences, Sgt. Harman said, "Regensburg is one I'll never forget. A Junkers 88 had knocked out one of our engines. We came home on three engines, subjected to fighter attacks and flak all the way. When we finally got home and were safely on the ground I counted 104 flak holes in the plane."

The DFC citation read, in part, "The courage, coolness and skill displayed by Sgt. Harman on all these occasions of combat over Europe reflect the greatest credit both on himself and the Armed

a radio network, and a promoter of embryo Presidents.

After the dinner, Luce and others sat around chatting. Among other things, he declared that an anti-Roosevelt trend was sweeping the entire country. Then, paraphrasing Henry Menckens's wisecrack of 1936 which he will never live down, Luce opined:

"Roosevelt could be licked by a one-eyed Chinaman."

A few days later, came the Lister Hill-Claude Pepper victories in Alabama and Florida; the Starnes, Costello and Dies exits from congress, and the victory of Wayne Morse, a pro-Roosevelt Republican, in Oregon.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Nelson Rockefeller, refreshing co-ordinator of inter-American relations, held a conference of Pan American development commissions in New York recently, and as part of the entertainment, took the good neighbors out to his ancestral home on the Hudson near Tarryton, N. Y.

Most of the Rockefeller family are teetotalers, especially Nelson's father, John D., Jr. Nelson never takes a drink, but he recognizes that there never has been a dry movement in Latin America and that Latinos do not understand the absence of alcoholic refreshments.

Perhaps because of this, perhaps because his teetotaler father was absent that day, Nelson was brave enough to break Rockefeller tradition and serve cocktails. They were about the best cocktails that ever passed through the stately stone portals of the Rockefeller estate—and perhaps the only ones. Nelson himself did not drink them, but his good neighbors did and enjoyed them immensely. In fact, so much so that one good neighbor from Mexico insisted on rolling down a hill, hands over his head, to show how easy it was to roll downhill—once you know how. There were no casualties.

UNIQUE CONGRESSMAN

Parely does a congressman complain about getting too many government contracts for his district. But that was exactly what Representative Richard Welch, California Republican, did the other day during a congressional hearing on ship repairs which took place in New York.

"It is pretty hard to understand why men should be transferred from here (New York) to the West Coast to build ships," Welch said. "Now if a New Yorker can build or repair ships on the West Coast, he can do it here . . . I always felt that New York did not get its just proportion of the shipbuilding."

Note—Welch is not opposed for re-election this year.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Sergeant William J. Goode, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Goode of Circleville Route 4, is now overseas with the Engine Repair Section of an Air Service Command depot "somewhere in England."

Allison and Packard Merlin engines are given complete overhauls by the technicians of this section.

In addition, they manufacture dies, parts, jigs, and fixtures which are needed to meet the ever-changing demands of aerial warfare.

Sgt. Goode is one of the men recently commended by Lieutenant General Carl Shatz, commanding general of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe, when production at the depot was increased by more than 100 percent.

Before entering the Army, he was employed by the Container Corporation of America in Circleville.

This is the new address of Jack Hatzo: E. M. 3/c, U. S. S. Salamaua, CVE, 96, E-Div., c/o Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, Cal.

T/5 Turney Owens, who was drafted into the U. S. Army in December, 1942, has been promoted from private first class to technician fifth grade and also been awarded a good conduct medal. He is the son of Mrs. Margaret Owens, Wayne township.

Private Orval M. Carothers, who has been spending a 21-day furlough with his wife, Mrs. Manley Carothers and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Carothers, 327 East Union street, has returned to duty at his new station. Pvt. Carothers had been stationed in Canada, along the Alcan Highway, for the last 16 months and has been transferred to a new station in the United States. His friends may write to him at the following address: Pvt. Orval M. Carothers, 35418993, 3593 S. W. Barracks 215, Fletcher General Hospital, Cambridge, Ohio.

After a two-week vacation furlough, Private Clyde J. Leist has a change of address: ASN 15126355, 400th Fighter Sqdn., De Ridder AAB, De Ridder, La.

Along with other members of his unit, Private Arthur C. Lee of Kingston has earned the commendation of his commanding general for diligence and attention to duty during March and April at an Eighth AAF Fighter Wing, England.

In the commendation, which was issued to the headquarters squadron of his fighter wing, Brigadier General Jesse Auton of Covington, Ky., pointed out the importance of every job including such routine duties as guard, clerk and KP in the destruction of the enemy.

Private Lee is assigned to the wing security section.

Flowers ordered for Mother's Day by William Strawser, who is stationed somewhere in England, were delivered Friday to his wife, Mrs. Goldie Strawser, and her mother, Mrs. Nellie Hampp, 403 East Franklin street. Strawser is

Young Men of 17

May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

ENLISTMENT in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews. At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team

Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the

AAF air combat crew is more than just planes and men. The combat crew is a team . . . the greatest fighting team the world has ever seen . . . with Gunners, Bombardiers, Navigators and Pilots flying and fighting together, to win.

And any young man who wants AAF wings should keep this ideal of teamwork uppermost in his mind. It is the key to AAF successes in battle. It will be the key to his own success in the AAF.

If you want to fly with the AAF, you may apply at any AAF Examining Board for enrollment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. Upon passing the preliminary qualifying physical and mental tests, you will become a member of the U. S. Army Air Forces—on inactive duty. This means that you will not be called for training until you have reached your 18th birthday. If you are at work you may remain on the job until you are 18. If you are in high school, you may elect to finish the semester you are in when you become 18. If you are a high school graduate, not over 17 years and 9 months, you may elect to take advantage of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which provides free college training for men approaching military age.

When called, you will first be given "basic" training. During this period, you will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether you will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot.

Your Place on the AAF Team

If you have an outstandingly high apti-

tude rating for a particular position, you may be given an opportunity to compete for the classification that you prefer. But it is important to remember that all jobs on the AAF team are vitally important . . . that air combat crews not only are chosen from the very cream of the nation's young men, but that each seat in every plane must be filled by the man best qualified to fill it.

Gunners go into actual combat as non-commissioned officers. In addition to being the world's best aerial marksmen, gunners may qualify as trained technicians—in radio, armament or airplane mechanics. Pilots, Navigators, and Bombardiers are graduated from training as 2nd Lieutenants or Flight Officers.

Your job, and your rank, in the AAF will depend upon your own demonstrated abilities. For full information as to qualifying for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, see your nearest AAF Examining Board or local Army Recruiting Station.

For Pre-Aviation Training

Whether or not you have yet reached 17, you can begin now to prepare yourself to qualify for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. See your local Civil Air Patrol officers about C.A.P. Cadet Training . . . also see your High School principal or adviser about recommended courses in the Air Service Division of the High School Victory Corps. Both offer excellent pre-aviation training . . . and help point the way to AAF wings.
